MEXICANS FIRE ON U. S. TROOPS

BOMBARD PORT OF RIGA

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 21.—Germany's Baltic fleet is reported in a dispatch from Stockholm to have defeated the Russian fleet, entered the Gulf of Riga and bombarded the port of Riga. The message gives no details.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 21.—Further details of the attack by the German Baltic fleet upon Riga were anxiously awaited. The announcement of last night that the Russian warships defending the Baltic port had drawn in closer caused excitement and pessimism. It was admitted in official circles that if the German fleet succeeded in forcing its way into the gulf of Riga, the chief port on the gulf could not hold out.

Preparations for such an eventuality had been made by removing government archives, but it had been hoped, nevertheless that Russian warships and mine fields could prevent the Germans from entering the gulf.

The rapidity of the German advance from the Vistula is causing disquiet here. Large Russian forces are still in the territory toward which the Germans are approaching. They retreated as rapidly as possible, but it is feared part of the forces may be cut off.

When Grand Duke Nicholas escaped the Vistula trap set by the Teutonic allies it was thought his armies would be safe on the Niemen-Bug front, but the fall of Kovno has put them in a difficult position.

On the Osowiec-Dielestoh front the Germans are striving to hamper the Russian retreat in order that other forces on the Kovno-Vilna line may strike eastward and cut off the withdrawing troops.

VIENNA, via Berlin and Amsterdam, Aug. 21.—More than 200,000 Russian troops in the fortress of Brest Litovsk and the region of which it is the only port of entry are being cut off from the main Russian retreat, according to a dispatch forwarded today by the correspondent of the Neue Freie Presse at Austrian headquarters.

The latest official report describes the situation at Brest Litovsk as follows:

Parts of several Russian armies have been driven in disorder into the district within range of the fortress."

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Aug. 21.—Austro-German troops have invested the Bug river fortress of Brest-Litovsk from three sides.

From the west bank of the river heavy guns are shelling the fortifications and news of the fall of Brest-Litovsk is confidently awaited here.

The capture of Novo-Georgievsk has released 160,000 German soldiers who were used in the operations against that stronghold. It is believed that part of these will be used to reinforce Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's left wing, on the Niemen River front, and the remainder dispatched toward Brest-Litovsk.

The Russians are still in possession of Grodno and Osowiec, but Berlin military experts predict their fall in the near future. Grodno is imperiled as a result of the fall of Kovno, while the advance of General Galwitz's army is taking his forces toward Osowiec.

While the capture of Novo-Georgievsk and Kovno are the outstanding features of the latest German successes, the advance of Field Marshal Von Mackensen's forces upon Brest-Litovsk has actually proved the marvel of the German campaign on the Eastern front.

Relief for All in Galveston Now

GALVESTON, Tex., Aug. 21.—With telegraphic communication restored, Galveston today was slowly getting back to normal. Water service in the city will be resumed likely tonight. The Federal authorities have relieved the condition brought about by food shortage and there was plenty of supplies on hand to care for all the sufferers. The known loss of life in Galveston proper was slight, and in the low sections west of Galveston it was officially reported that twenty-five persons were dead.

New $2,500,000,000 German War Loan

BERLIN, Aug. 21 (Via Amsterdam).—The Reichstag voted a third war loan of 10,000,000,000 marks ($2,500,000,000) early today after an all night session. This increases to 39,000,000,000 marks ($7,000,000,000) the total war credits voted by the Reichstag for the war.

The Reichstag incorsed the government's conduct of the great conflict and approved the financial report made by Dr. Karl Helfferich, Secretary of the Imperial Treasury.

To Fire on Belgians Who "Insult Troops"

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 21.—General von Bissing, military governor of Belgium, has issued a proclamation at Brussels announcing that German troops will fire upon the populace "if insults to the troops are repeated," according to information received here today.

Rue Excelsior and Rue Zam in Brussels have been quarantined because when German troops passed through the streets men and women banged pots and saucepans, blew whistles and called derisively to the soldiers.

Austrians Lose in Battle in the Air

TURIN, Italy, Aug. 21.—Three Austrian aeroplanes were destroyed and their crews either killed or captured in a battle with Italian machines off the Adriatic coast, according to authentic information received here today. The Austrian aeroplanes were on their way to raid the Italian coast. An Italian air squadron chased the Austrians for many miles.

Cymric, Convoyed Through Danger Zone, Safe Here

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—"German spies are active throughout Britain. Candies and other dainties given to troops leaving for the front have been poisoned, and even the respirators used to protect the soldiers from the gases have been lined with deadly poison."

This statement was made by Miss M. B. Bloss, a St. Louis newspaper woman, who arrived on the White Star liner Cymric today. The Cymric was convoyed by sixty patrol boats from Liverpool to a point about sixty miles south of Kinsale Head, passengers stated. When out of the danger zone the Cymric speeded at full steam and reached New York without incident. The convoy was the result of the report that submarines were in the Irish Sea.

CARRANZA BACKED BY OBREGON

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 21.—General Funston reported to the War Department today that a detachment of the Second Cavalry, U. S. A., under command of Captain Holcomb, while on a practice march along the Mexican border near Lochiel, Ariz., was fired upon by Mexican soldiers.

He added that 3,000 Mexican troops under General Calles, a Carranza commander, were encamped directly across the border from Lochiel. He made no mention of casualties. Funston did not report whether or not the Americans replied to the fire.

Funston's message follows:

"Captain Holcomb on practice march between Ranch 40 and Lochiel, Ariz., was fired upon yesterday by Mexicans south of line. Three thousand Mexicans reported camped south of Lochiel.

MEXICANS IN CAMP.

"This camp of three thousand Mexicans is that of General Calles at Santa Cruz."

General Obregon backs up Carranza in replying to Secretary Lansing's note, proposing peace in Mexico, it was announced today.

He flatly says that General Carranza is the sole representative of Mexico in dealings with other nations. He informs Secretary Lansing and the Latin-Americans that their communication must be answered by Carranza and Carranza alone, as he is the First Chief of Mexico.

President Wilson has personally thanked, on behalf of the United States, Senor Cardoza, the Brazilian Minister to Mexico City, for his work while looking after the affairs of the United States there during the last year and a half.

At the same time the President, Secretary of State Lansing and the Brazilian envoy discussed the Mexican situation.

CARRANZA HOSTILE.

Whether Senor Cardoza will participate in the next conference between the South American envoys and Secretary Lansing was not decided. It is said he will do so, however, now that it is established definitely that Carranza intends to refuse to participate in the proposed peace conference and to deny that he be recognized as the provisional president of Mexico.

Carranza, it was stated at headquarters here today, will be in Mexico City not later than Tuesday and will establish a permanent provisional government there.

The Villaista agency here today issued a statement claiming that Durango had been recaptured from the Carranzistas without the firing of a shot.

Nantasket to Provincetown Swim on Today

What many experts believe will prove the greatest swimming race in the history of aquatic sport is on for today, when Sam Richards of the L. Street Swimmers' Club and Henry F. Sullivan of Lowell start from Nantasket Beach to swim to Provincetown in a match race, a distance of about forty miles. This race is for the championship of the world and is sanctioned by the A. A. U. Any record made will be accepted.

The men will start at 2 p. m. in front of the State bath house, and, if either reaches the destination, the point should be struck between 2 and 3 p. m. Sunday.

If either swimmer quits the other will be declared the winner even if he does not succeed in reaching Provincetown. A buoy will be placed where the last man leaves the water and the correct distance will be taken.

UNEASY AT ABSENCE OF NEWS

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—State Department officials this morning said they were mystified at the fact that no word was received from any representatives in Great Britain over night as to the number of Americans lost on the Arabic, and other details.

The last official word from Queenstown was in a cable timed at 4 o'clock last night. It stated that only two Americans—Mrs. Josephine Bruguiere and Dr. Edmond F. Wood—were missing. This information came from Vice-Consul Thompson. State Department officials now are inclined to believe that this is a correct report of the American dead.

With the now certain loss of American lives, the crisis was admittedly more serious today. Officials were inclined to look with alarm on the increasing activity of the German undersea boats.

All reports indicate that Berlin has renewed her campaign, and officials admitted privately their fears that the naval party, which advocates sinking all British shipping, regardless of whether neutrals are on board, is in the ascendancy.

MAY RECALL GERARD.

It is considered certain here that unless Germany should disavow the sinking of the Arabic—something on the hopes for—or offer a legal technical excuse for it, the President must withdraw Ambassador Gerard and hand Ambassador Bernstorff his passports.

Pressure of action without further exchange of written communications is being brought to bear on the White House. Many leading Democrats are writing and telegraphing, urging that a special session be called.

Should Germany offer an explanation, it would be accepted here as an indication that that government has not rejected the American contention and is at riding roughshod over the principles for which the American nation is contending.

COURSE UNCERTAIN.

President Wilson, it was learned today, never has taken up with his cabinet the future course to be observed should Germany disregard our position on submarine warfare. At the time of the first Lusitania note it was suggested that the next step would be severance of diplomatic relations. But Secretary of State Bryan opposed it and the matter was left undecided.

The President does not want to call a special session of Congress. He has taken the position that Congress in session at this particular time would be a menace rather than a benefit. But if there is to be a suspension of diplomatic relations with Germany, it is hard to see how a spe-

FIVE LINERS OUT OF NEW YORK NOW IN DANGER ZONE

Five liners, carrying passengers and cargos from New York to European points, are now in or near the "war zone." They are:

Lapland—Left August 12 for Liverpool.
Ryndam—Left August 10 for Rotterdam.
Frederick VIII—Left Aug 11 for Copenhagen.
St. Paul—Left August 14 for Liverpool.
Kristiania Fjord—Left August 14 for Bergen.

The sailings of the Cunard liner Saxonia scheduled for today from Liverpool to New York, and that of the American liner St. Louis, which was to have sailed from Liverpool to New York tomorrow, have been cancelled.

Mrs. Bruguiere Postponed Trip, Fearing Death

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Marion Bruguiere of Homewood, Cedarhurst, L. I., whom Mrs. Josephine Bruguiere, lost on the Arabic was coming to visit, said Mrs. Bruguiere had intended coming earlier in the Summer, but had postponed her visit several times because of the sinking of the Lusitania. Mrs. Marion Bruguiere said that she had engaged passage on an earlier boat, but at the last minute her fears overcame her and she cancelled her reservation.

Mrs. Josephine Bruguiere was an American citizen. She was the daughter of Pedar Sather, a San Francisco banker, who founded the Sather Banking Company, which became one of the great financial institutions in the early days of California. Later Mr. Sather became a partner in Drexel & Co. His daughter married Emile Bruguiere, who died fifteen years ago.

About eight years ago Mrs. Bruguiere and her son Louis gave up their residence in San Francisco and went to Newport, and Mrs. Bruguiere built a villa there which she called Castlewood. For five seasons Mrs. Bruguiere spent her Summers at Newport. Between seasons she lived in New York city. She and her son went to Paris in 1912. Last year the Newport place was sold.

PEASLEE SAYS CONFESSION WAS A LIE

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 21.—Morrison Peaslee of Henniker, when arraigned before Judge Clark in the municipal court today for the murder of his father, a toy manufacturer, on May 22, 1914, pleaded not guilty and was held without bail for a hearing Friday.

Peaslee's plea was entered through his attorney, George V. Hill. The prisoner appeared indifferent to the proceeding. The state was represented by County-Solicitor Robert Murchia and Attorney-General James P. Tuttle.

Immediately after his arraignment, Peaslee was taken to the Merrimack County Jail. There he was later visited by his brother, Shirley, both of whom came down from Henniker too late for the court proceedings. All three wept.

Upon emerging from the jail Peaslee's brother said:

"I am satisfied that my brother is innocent of this charge. He has admitted to us that he made a confession, but he denies that the confession is the truth. We believe in his innocee and we will stand by him to the end."

OFFICIALLY DENY THAT SHIP WAS GUARDED

By HERBERT TEMPLE,
European Manager of the International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 21—The British government announced this afternoon that the White Star liner Arabic was not convoyed by warships when she was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine.

Forty-five persons perished when the Arabic was torpedoed.

These figures were contained in an official statement issued by the White Star line today. They include seven passengers, two of whom were Americans, Mrs. Josephine Bruguiere and Dr. Edmond F. Wood.

The official figures were given out fifty-one hours after the Arabic was sunk, and the length of time that had elapsed since the destruction of the liner convinced the searchers that none of the missing would be found alive.

The bodies of a woman and man, the former believed to be that of Mrs. Frank Tattersall, the latter that of a steward, were found in two of the White Star liner's lifeboats not far from the spot where the ship was torpedoed, it was stated in a dispatch from Queenstown today.

Mrs. Tattersall, an English woman, has been missing since the Arabic was sunk, but her husband and two children were saved.

BOATS ADRIFT.

The spot where the lifeboats were picked up was only five miles from the grave of the Arabic. Five more boats, all empty, were nearby.

Figures are still conflicting, some despatches increasing the number of victims to nearly three score.

Thirteen passengers are missing, according to one report, although advices from Queenstown stated that the victims among the passengers might rise to sixteen. The number of missing seamen is estimated at from forty to forty-five. The White Star Line lists seven passengers and thirty-eight seamen missing.

Tugs are searching the water off Fastnet for more bodies.

Ambassador W. H. Page is con-

NOW BELIEVE LAPLAND IS SAFE

LONDON, Aug. 21.—With the White Star liner Bovic reported safe at Liverpool, shipping agents in London expressed the belief today that news would soon be received of the arrival of the Red Star liner Lapland.

Up to 1 o'clock this afternoon no definite news of that ship had been received, but it was thought probable that its reported destruction, like that of the Bovic, would prove erroneous.

The Lapland sailed from New York August 12 for Liverpool with 218 passengers, including thirteen Americans, and a capacity cargo of war munitions and other supplies.

There was a ray of hope for her safety in a dispatch from Queenstown that she may have been confused with the Bristol liner New York City, which fell prey to a submarine Thursday.

The Lapland, a vessel of 18,694 tons, carried a full capacity cargo on the trip.

White Star officials had no advices regarding the Lapland other than the press dispatches from Queenstown. The steamer is in command of Captain T. Bradshaw.

Steamship Orduna Sails for Liverpool

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Undismayed by the fate of the Arabic, the Cunard liner Orduna sailed for Liverpool today, carrying 276 passengers and 3,000 tons of cargo. Seven of the passengers were Americans.

The Purchase of a Two-Family House

Is an excellent investment for the man with little money. In most cases, the investor can obtain possession by the payment of a few hundred dollars down, assuming the burden of the mortgage which is already on the property.

The rent from one side of the house, in most cases, pays the interest on the mortgage, in addition to the cost of repairs, insurance and other small items.

In this way the owner of the house gets the rent free, and in a great many cases realizes a good return on the investment.

If you have a little money which you wish to invest to the best advantage, you should look around for bargains in two-family houses. There are a number of new, desirable dwellings of this type on the market at the present time. A number of them are advertised in the "Real Estate" columns of the Boston AMERICAN today and tomorrow.

If you have Real Estate you would like to exchange for something else, or if you wish to sell outright the property you own, advertise in the "Want Ad" columns of the AMERICAN. Leave your ads today at 80 Summer St., 204 Washington St., or ducting a rigid investigation of the destruction of the Arabic, through the consular agencies at Queenstown and Liverpool.

AMERICAN DEAD ON ARABIC NOW NUMBER TWO

It has not yet been definitely established whether or not the Arabic was convoyed by a British warship, but the belief is strong that she was not, owing to the scarcity of men-of-war for such purposes.

DUNSLEY LOST.

The British steamship Dunsley, to whose aid the Arabic was going when attacked, has been given up for lost in the absence of any official information relative to her fate.

Captain William Finch of the Arabic has given his version of the destruction of his ship to representatives of both the Admiralty and the White Star line.

Up to date there has been no announcement that the Board of Trade will hold an open investigation of the destruction of the liner, as was done in the case of the Lusitania.

Vice-Consul Thompson, at Queenstown, has been taking statements from survivors for Ambassador Page.

According to one of these statements, Captain Finch tried to save his ship when he saw the torpedo speeding toward it. From the bridge, Captain Finch ordered the helm jammed down and the bow had begun to veer around when the torpedo struck.

It was supposed that the boilers exploded.

LIFEBOAT BLOWN UP.

One of the lifeboats was caught by the geyser of water that spurted skyward when the torpedo exploded and was carried forty feet into the air.

The wireless apparatus was so badly damaged by the shock of the torpedo's impact that the wireless operator had time to send out but one S O S call.

Captain Finch refused to desert his ship, and was the last to leave.

At least one of the lifeboats capsized after leaving the ship, apparently from overcrowding, as the weather was calm and the sea smooth.

A number of survivors arrived here from Queenstown today, coming by way of Liverpool.

GERMAN-AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS THINK WAR IS FAR DISTANT

Following are editorial utterances of German-American newspapers on the sinking of the Arabic.

NEW YORK EVENING STAATS ZEITUNG:

To deny that the already delicate situation has been strained by the sinking of the Arabic to the point of an open breach would mean to play the role of the ostrich. * * * The friendly relations, which are so close to our hearts, are seriously threatened. * * *

The situation is serious, because the policy of our government, indorsed, applauded, pushed and stimulated by a pro-British press, which, despite all protestations of peace, is inflicted to war, carries in itself the germ of an unavoidable conflict; because, as the case of the Arabic again shows, the German government, if it would not commit suicide, never more will or can agree to the terms of our government. * * *

LOUISVILLE ANZEIGER:

So far, we know nothing except what the British censor has passed. We do not know the circumstances of the sinking of the Arabic, but in spite of this the Anglo-American press breaks into a clamor of war. Fortunately, the President and his advisers are cool and determined to wait until they are advised officially.

ILLINOIS STAATS ZEITUNG OF CHICAGO:

We hardly believe that anybody will venture to assert that the Arabic was not a hostile boat from the German point of view. The Arabic chiefly carried war supplies since the outbreak of the war. The crew formed a rifle club and practiced daily with the long range rifles of heavy calibre. The seamen would hail a small raft astern of the vessel upon which a stick of wood would be stuck to represent a submarine periscope. This served as a target. If Americans knew this and used the boat just the same they are to bear the consequences of their reckless actions. If they did not know it, England is responsible for the loss of American lives.

ST. PAUL DAILY VOLKS ZEITUNG:

The sinking of the Arabic vessel, controlled by the English admiralty, and in continual use as a transport of ammunition, has seriously delayed an enormous cargo of war material destined for the slaughter of German soldiers and thus has called forth a new hysterical outbreak of the pro-British-American press. We cannot believe that President Wilson is ready to plunge the country into war for the sake of a few American who staked their lives to safeguard England's transport of ammunition.

CINCINNATI VOLKSBLATT:

All indications point to a satisfactory explanation of the sinking of the Arabic. The fact, however, remains that amicable relations between the United States and Germany hang by a thread which might be snapped at any moment by some untoward incident. The incredible state of affairs could be easily removed by applying common sense which would and ought to induce the President to tell American citizens to save their country from embarrassment by traveling under the American flag.

AMERICAN PAPERS SAY WILSON SHOULD ACT ON THE ARABIC

Editorials in American newspapers on the sinking of the Arabic include the following:

SPRINGFIELD UNION:

"The torpedoing of the Arabic was in defiance of the letter and spirit of all the protests our government has made to Germany in that regard. Unless we mean to hold Germany to a strict accountability' we must write ourselves down as lacking in the courage to defend our rights or we must tacitly acknowledge that Mr. Bryan was not far out of the way in his alleged intimations to the Austrian ambassador that the letters to Germany were written more especially for popular effect at home and were not to be regarded as necessarily a program to be followed in subsequent emergencies."

PROVIDENCE JOURNAL:

"We have gone to the limit of forbearance in our endeavor to adjust these international differences. But Germany has seen fit, now for a month, to let our latest note go unanswered, except for the cruel reply embodied in the conscienceless destruction of the Arabic. The time has come when this patience of ours, exercised so long and in the face of such provocations, can be spent in only one way—cowardice."

HARTFORD TIMES:

"The sinking of the Arabic was another episode in the German scheme for the reduction of England through the steadfast pursuance of a policy ruthless and contemptuous in its regard for anything save the accomplishment of the end in view. And the question is whether or not we are going to do anything about it."

NEW HAVEN REGISTER:

"It cannot be claimed that the Arabic carried munitions for the allies. It cannot be claimed that she was bound for a hostile port. No, the attack shows, as many incidents which precede it, the arrogance toward the country which has been a characteristic of the German attitude toward the United States."

LOUISVILLE COURIER JOURNAL:

"It is the last straw that breaks the camel's back. * * * The people en masse demand the suspension of all relations with Germany, and we believe the President will promptly answer the summons."

ST. LOUIS POST DISPATCH:

"Unless the German government disavows it, the evidence of Germany's utter disregard of American rights and of the protests and warnings of our government is convincing. Repetition of similar warringless attacks on merchant ships cannot fail to bring the fatal consequence."

NEW ORLEANS ITEM:

"If the circumstances of the sinking of the Arabic should prove to be as indicated by first reports, it is difficult to see how President Wilson, in the light of his previous deliverance to Germany, can fail either to bring the United States to war with Germany or to dissolve relations with Germany or to adopt some somewhat from the position taken by him."

PORTLAND (ME.) PRESS:

"The only thing left for the United States to do is to sever all connections with the nation which has deliberately or without regard to our expressions, affronted us and proved that it regards neither friendship nor our disinterested purpose. The time has come to show by acts that we meant what we said and are ready to defend our rights."

BROOKLYN EAGLE:

"Assuming that all the circumstances are as reported, the first step he, the President, must take, a step that can no longer be avoided without national abasement and humiliation, is to send Count Von Bernstorff out of the country and simultaneously recall Mr. Gerard from Berlin. After that Congress could well be assembled to provide for whatever may be forced upon us."

BALTIMORE NEWS:

"If the Arabic's case develops at its worst, there is nothing for us but to recall our ambassador and send Germany's back to her."

BALTIMORE AMERICAN:

"Germany has served notice that her submarines will sink an enemy's ship no matter who is aboard. It is up to President Wilson and his advisers to decide what they will do about it."

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER:

"The sinking of the Arabic proves the insincerity of the German officialdom which upheld military expediency as mitigating the Lusitania offence against humanity. American sentiment is unanimously against a nation which stands sponsor for the policy of ruthless murder."

PORTLAND OREGONIAN:

"The attack on the Arabic is a challenge, definite and defiant, to President Wilson to follow his words with deeds."

CINCINNATI COMMERCIAL-TRIBUNE:

"The sinking of the Arabic with American passengers aboard adds little or nothing to the gravity of the situation, which already had reached a point where either this country or Germany performs must retire from the position taken or see upon a more strenuous method. The making of strong and virile phrases hardly meets the situation."

SAY TORPEDO THAT SANK LINER KILLED WOMEN AND CHILDREN

By International News Service.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 21.—The torpedo which sank the White Star liner Arabic killed a number of women and children before they had time to get to the lifeboats, it was declared by Quartermaster Budwell here today.

"The explosion threw me out of my bunk," said the quartermaster. "I rushed out on the boat deck, where I found lifeboat No. 15 lying in pieces, having been shattered by the bomb. On the lower deck I saw the bodies of two women. They had been killed by the explosion. When we got into boats I saw the bodies of a number of children float by.

"Several boats which were near the Arabic when she took her last plunge were overturned."

Buddell's statement that women and children were killed by the torpedo was borne out by Rueben Liss, another passenger who is said to be in Queenstown.

"I saw the torpedo coming for the ship," declared Liss, "but did not see the submarine. Captain Finch also saw it, and as he did he remarked in a tone of no standing by. 'Now, boys, we are all lost.'

"The officers and seamen were heroes. They risked their lives willingly to get women and children into the boats and to save the male passengers as well. I saw the bodies of three women who had been killed by the explosion. The boat I was in capsized, but we were able to get into another one."

Purser Templeton declares the ship went down in six minutes instead of in the time originally announced.

"Captain Finch was on the bridge and behaved most gallantly," said Templeton. "We saw no submarine, and no warning was given."

The White Star directors have expressed their profound admiration for the exemplary conduct of the captain and crew, and a more substantial reward will probably be forthcoming.

CAPTAIN OF ARABIC WAS PICKED UP BY BRITISH DESTROYER

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Charles F. Kresser, an occupant of the lifeboat that saved Captain William Finch, was among the Arabic survivors arriving here today. "The boat that I was first in capsized from the wash of the big liner," he said to-day, "and we were all thrown into the water. Pretty soon I was picked up by another lifeboat and as we were pulling away from the wreckage we saw Captain Finch clinging to a piece of debris. We rowed toward him and dragged him into the boat. He had been in the water half an hour and was badly chilled. After a while a British destroyer came into view and we were all taken on board."

Mr. Kresser, a Frenchman, was on his way to California to visit his parents.

14,493,000 Men Killed, Maimed and Captured in Great War

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Fourtees million four hundred and ninety-three thousand men have been killed, wounded or captured on all sides thus far in the war, according to the official estimates presented by the French War Department to the French Senate. Considerably more than one-third of this number are said to be killed, and of the killed nearly two-thirds are said to be Teutonic (German and Austro-Hungarian). Of the loss of all kinds, the Entente Allies are said to have suffered 3 per cent. and the Teutons 62 per cent. The figures presented to the Senate are as follows:

	Entente	Teutonic	All.
Killed	1,739,00	3,350,000	5,089,000
Wounded	2,559,00	3,885,000	6,474,000
Captured	1,135,00	1,795,000	2,930,000
Totals	5,463,00	9,030,000	14,493,000

FARRAR PLANS TO POSE AGAIN FOR 'MOVIES'

Geraldine Farrar, the Melrose grand opera star who has just made her debut in the "movies," has returned to the East, and declares that she is looking forward eagerly to posing for the "movies" again next Summer. Said Miss Farrar on her arrival in New York from California:

"I shall sing in concert under the management of Mr. Charles Ellis of Boston. I shall sing in opera in Chicago in December, and at the Metropolitan in New York from February on, but I shall be back in the movies next Summer."

"After acting before the camera for the first time, I feel that I have only improved my acting for operatic roles, but have reached a larger public than was possible before. I feel that I have made some sensational pictures that will appeal to millions, when only thousands were reached before. Acting for the pictures gives one a larger scope of action than the operatic stage, where there are many limitations. The pictures in which I appeared include 'Carmen,' 'Maria Rosa' and a new picture, 'The Temptation.'"

It was figured that Miss Farrar acted in about 18,000 pictures, or three miles of motion films, during her engagement. Asked if the report was true that she had given utterance to pro-German expressions, Miss Farrar dismissed the question with a shake of the head.

"What my sympathies are is my own private affair," she said. "The war is too awful to discuss anyway, and I have only sympathy for all those who must fight in it."

AWAIT FACTS IN ARABIC CRISIS

cial session can be avoided, as the President cannot spend money upon precautionary defence measures without specific authorization.

It was stated at the White House that no special cabinet meeting is contemplated. The regular cabinet meeting day is next Tuesday.

QUESTION OF CONVOY.

The question whether the Arabic was convoyed by the British government is the keynote of the new crisis.

Unless the liner was actually being convoyed by warships which were within striking distance at the time the torpedo was fired, the State Department will maintain Germany had no justification whatever for attacking the Arabic without giving warning and giving her sufficient time for all on board to get away in the lifeboats.

Official reports that survivors remained in the water 4½ hours before being reached indicate to officials here that the Arabic was without convoy.

This is borne out by Vice-Consul Thompson at Queenstown, who cables:

SURVIVOR'S STORY.

Only twenty-one American passenger were on the Arabic, according to a list from Liverpool; checked up sixteen survivors and may get more. Here is a statement of Zellah Covington:

"I came upon deck from breakfast and was standing on the starboard side looking at the steamship Dunsley, which had been torpedoed a few minutes before, when I heard some one say, 'Here it comes.'

"Then I looked and saw the torpedo approaching about 50 yards away. I noticed that the ship had changed her course and that the torpedo would either miss or strike well astern. It struck on the starboard side astern, about three feet below the water line.

"Immediately the ship was struck the captain ordered all passengers on deck. Boats were swung out the day before and equipped and launched in the best manner, also all ropes and gear seemed to be in perfect order. There was no panic. Crew and passengers were orderly and the work of getting the boats out and the lifebelts on was one only of a short time.

"Those boats were in the water four and one-half hours before rescue ships came in answer to the wireless signals sent out at the time the torpedo struck us."

CONSUL ORDERED TO GET STORIES OF U. S. SURVIVORS

QUEENSTOWN, Aug. 21.—United States Consul Wesley Frost today received a cablegram from Secretary of State Lansing instructing him to obtain affidavits from the American survivors of the Arabic, with a view to discovering whether any warning was given by the submarine that torpedoed the liner.

Stories told by Captain Finch, his officers, members of the crew and surviving passengers all bear out the assertion that no warning was given.

Many of the American survivors have left here, but others will be requested by the consul to swear to affidavits setting forth all the facts they know.

FIND 9 BODIES IN ST. LOUIS FLOOD

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 21.—Nine bodies were recovered by the police today from the flooded sections of this city. The receding water permitted rescuers to make a thorough search of houses in the submerged areas and led to the finding of the bodies.

Three others are missing. Eight of the dead were negroes and one a white woman.

Property loss in St. Louis was estimated at $1,000,000.

The total rainfall from August 19 to 6:15 a. m. today was 7.4 inches. Property damage of several hundred thousand dollars resulted on the east side in Illinois from the overflowing Wood River and Cohokia Creek. Many residents of Alton, Edwardsville, Wood River, Bonbow City and the surrounding territory were compelled, but no loss of life occurred as far as known. The Wood River levees broke early last night.

The receding water swept down upon East Alton, Bonbow City and West Wood River. Residents of the low latter towns escaped through the warning given by several men on horses, who rode at a gallop ahead of the onrushing flood.

A 300-foot section of the levee at East Alton gave way during the night, flooding a large area. Much damage to crops and loss of live stock has resulted. Forty families were taken from their home in East St. Louis in boats, and several sections of the town were inundated.

The storm was central today near Lake Erie. Its force was diminished, although heavy rains accompanied it.

Large sections of the city were flooded today. A wide area in St. Louis county and a part of the manufacturing community on the Illinois side of the Mississippi were under water as the result of the heavy rains that formed in fan end of the west Indian hurricane that struck Galveston, Texas, on Monday.

Fully 20,000 persons were unable to reach the business district yesterday, and hundreds of commuters were still kept away from their work today.

This will bring the total force at Haiti up to 3,300 men, 1,500 marines and 200 bluejackets being there already.

HUNT COMPOSER OF MUSIC HID IN CELLAR

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—Found in a miniature vault constructed in the foundation of a boiler in the subbasement of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel when workmen were tearing away the brick work, a musical composition of unusual merit has created much discussion. The composer is being sought by J. M. Frazier, manager of the hostelry, in order that his musical efforts can obtain their just reward.

The workmen came upon a space in the boiler foundation about the size of two bricks and in this miniature vault was found wrapped in a newspaper not only the complete original musical composition, but several pages of pencil and ink portions of the work.

The unusual find was taken to Mr. Frazier, who called Uriel Davis, musical director at the hotel, into conference. Davis examined the find and pronounced it an exceptionally beautiful composition.

The name of the composer, Alberto Stascio, is unknown to all connected with the hotel. The work bears the date March 24, 1904. This leads all to believe that the composer was a workman in one of the brickkayer gangs that worked upon the hotel when its construction was started.

Just what motive led the composer to hide his efforts in such a manner, especially when every chance was against it ever being found, cannot be determined by those who have examined the composition. Davis and all who have examined it predict for it great popularity and plans for its publication are going ahead. It was played last night by the hotel orchestra and attracted much attention.

The work is of a style entirely in accord with musical compositions of the present time and it makes excellent dance music. It is believed that the composer was unable to dispose of it at the time he wrote it and, discouraged by rejections, inclosed it in the miniature vault constructed by his own hands to receive the dead hopes for fame and a goodly sum of money. If he can be found, both Frazier and Davis are confident that they can obtain for him a substantial amount of money for his rights in the composition.

2 Injured When Car Jumps Rails on Dover Street Bridge

A man and a woman were injured when an outward-bound South Boston car jumped the tracks while crossing the Dover street bridge.

They are Joseph Kettarly, thirty, of No. 193 West Ninth street and Miss Edith Murray, twenty-five, of No. 295 West Ninth street, South Boston. They were taken to their homes in automobiles.

According to the police, the car was bound for Dorchester street from Silvan square. Only a few passengers were on the car at the time. Just as the car was about to cross the draw bridge, it suddenly lurched, left the tracks and rolled into the curbing. The car was almost overturned, but jumped from their seats. Other passengers were thrown violently to the floor, but remained in their seats and were uninjured.

Lynn Police Probe Suspicious Blaze with Big Water Loss

Police started investigations today to determine the cause of the fire of suspicious origin which started the sprinklers working in the Vann Building, Bread, Washington and Union streets, Lynn, and flooding the five lower floors with a damage of $15,000.

The firemen found that the fire had been started in some waste and rags under a bench and are suspicious that it may have been set or that someone may have carelessly left something burning before leaving work for the night.

It was not known there was a fire in the building until persons on the street saw a deluge of water coming from the lower windows of the building.

ALLSTON WIFE CHARGES MANY CRUELTIES

Alleging cruel and abusive treatment, Mrs. Harriett M. Campbell of Boston has filed suit for divorce in the Superior Court against her husband, Ronald J. Campbell.

The marriage of the Campbells was May 28, 1913, and they formerly lived in Allston. Pending the trial of the divorce libel, the court has allowed Mrs. Campbell $6 weekly as alimony. Mrs. Campbell seeks to resume her maiden name of Harriett M. Flagg.

Some of the abuses which she claims her husband subjected her to are:

WIFE'S ALLEGATIONS.

While "in a fit of temper and rage" at their home at No. 26 Coolidge road, Allston, on September 1, 1913, he threw a melon at her, she says. In 1913 he threw a glass of water at her, she claims, also that he threw a knife across a table at her, the force of the throw breaking the knife. So slapped her face, she asserts. Early in January, 1914, he threatened her with bodily harm, to put her out on the street, to kill her, called her father a thief and swore about him, and while shouting her with this language, violently shaking his fist in her face, according to her story.

She also alleges that around that same time, while at a dance in a hall in Brighton, he became angry and threatened her with bodily harm so that she became afraid of him and went to live with her parents, remaining a week. She says that he went to her folks and promised not to repeat the acts, saying that his temper got the best of him, and that he did not know what he was doing or saying while in a emper, and that if she would return to him he would cease that treatment of her. Acting on this promise she returned to him.

After a time, she alleges, he gradually got back to the use of the vile language, calling her names not fit to be printed and other things, such as "snake," "viper," "fool," "lazy" and all manner of curses and insults to her and her people.

She alleges that he committed the following acts of cruelty at their home, No. 26 Everett street, Allston: Christmas, 1914, struck her violently with a towel; in January, 1915, violently pulled her from a chair and threw her from one room into the kitchen up against a wall; on that occasion entered her not to eat with him in the dining room, pushing her into the kitchen to make her eat there.

TELLS OF QUARRELS.

In May, 1915, she says, he pulled her from a seat at the dining room table and pushed her into the kitchen, bringing her supper to her, the whole act being accompanied by violent and ugly language. He also threatened to put her out on the street in her nightclothes in the Spring of the same year, she says. In May, 1915, she says, he expressed a wish that she might drop dead where she stood and that he might be rid of of her.

Becoming violently angry at her on Everett street near their home in the same month, she alleges he grabbed her by the arm, shook her violently, publicly shamed her, threatened her life and expressed a desire to be rid of her.

After another such quarrel on a public street in June, she says he left her and went to live in a room in the city, and told her that he would not be responsible any longer for her food and board.

This final quarrel, she says, was the climax of a series of quarrels, during which he used bad language, threatened her with bodily harm, so that she became ill, and was treated by a doctor for a nervous breakdown, due, she alleges, to his abusive treatment and her consequent constant fear of bodily harm.

Miss Blake heard a wild squawking in her henyard. She ran out to see what the trouble was, and found the hawk had swooped down and buried its talons in one of her hens.

Without any hesitation she made for the hawk, which was so absorbed in hanging onto the hen it did not hear her approach.

MODEL HUSBAND A GIFT, SAYS DR. WITHAM

Who is a model husband?

The husband who does not keep secrets from his wife.

The husband who does not go off the handle when you tell him something about a grocery bill being larger this month than last month.

The husband who can keep his poise when things go dead wrong in the family life for weeks.

These are some of the views of Dr. Mabel Witham of the Back Bay, who believes a genial husband the greatest gift that the earth can give any one. Dr. Witham said:

"People depend somewhat upon the views of others to smooth off the rough corners in their own home. Nothing makes a home so pleasant as an agreeable man around it. I don't think he need be a namby-pamby man to be a model. Deliver me from the man who is simply nice, but has no great amount of common sense for the ordinary affairs of life.

"The husband that every wife wants is a man who is so broad minded that he can forgive his wife's eccentricities.

"Scolding a woman does not do any good. In the married life the best way to get peace is the quickest way to get more out of one another.

"Never keep referring to an old mistake. The model husband is one who can forget mistakes of the past and look toward the future.

"For, after all, when there is a difference in the married life, why put stress upon it, why should the wife go around and tell it to the person in the next flat, or why should the husband talk about how the 'old woman' snarls at him.

"The model husband knows how to keep the confidence of his wife and does not talk about her and her faults to outsiders. This is such a possession for a model husband."

BOSTON PULPIT AND CHURCH ACTIVITIES

"Advertise your church services in the newspapers," urges the Rev. Emerson P. Harris in the current number of the Christian Register, the Unitarian weekly in Boston.

"That advertising is a necessity to the greatest usefulness of the church, there is no doubt, and it will be a great day for Unitarians as well as other Christian bodies when we all are thoroughly convinced of this and find a way to do it.

"In the first place, the expenditure of something like a billion dollars a year in the country for advertising, and perhaps as much more for persuasive salesmanship that goes with it, means an enormous concentration of attention upon material things.

"The church cannot afford to remain silent. Libraries, charities and other institutions are becoming vocal through the use of paid-for space. Why not the churches?"

Boston Methodists are to start branches of the "League of the Loyal Tongue."

The league is against all "tongue threats," and every one who has a sharp and sarcastic tongue will be asked to join the league and be true to its principles.

Those who join the league make the following promise:

"I purpose to abstain from all unkind speech and as often as I refuse to speak in the spirit of Christ to strangers, friend or kin, words of cheer, courage or counsel."

The founder of the league is the Rev. W. D. Marsh, pastor of the Methodist Church, Appleton, Wis. It has today branches in fourteen States. Massachusetts will become the league this Fall into many of its churches.

The Rev. Dr. L. H. Murlin, president of Boston University, will preach tomorrow in the Bar Harbor Methodist Church.

The Rev. George A. Gorden, D. D. pastor of the Old South Church, will occupy the pulpit of the Central Congregational Church, Lynn, tomorrow. This is the first time in a ministry of more than thirty years in Boston Dr. Gordon has preached in Lynn.

The Rev. Walter George Reed, rector of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, Brighton, returns his salary to the church to pay its current expenses.

Don't forget the big Laymen's Missionary convention coming in Tremont Temple, November 13. This convention will be one of a hundred to be held in the United States during 1915-6.

The Rev. George C. Richmond, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, who has been spending the week in Boston, said about the coming of "Billy" Sunday to this city:

"I don't believe in the tactics of Billy' Sunday, but if he can do anything to break up the aristocratic religious atmosphere of the Episcopal and Unitarian churches in this country he will have my commendation, though I can't take to his methodistical theology. Anything which will break up the ecclesiastical ham-back religion of the Unitarian and Episcopal churches in Boston is well worth the noises of a howitzer."

Re Vittorio al Fronte

Re Vittorio Emanuele ha visitato molti punti del nuovo fronte Italiano. Discendendo dalla vallata del Chiese, egli è passato da tutti i villaggi che tre mesi fa appartenevano all'Austria. Tutti fabbricati erano decorati da bandiere tricolori e gli abitanti fecero delle sentite dimostrazioni al Re.

Dei corrispondenti che si trovavano in quella parte della vallata del Chiese, dove Garibaldi si fermò nel 1866 nella sua marcia per liberare Trento, a tre miglia dalle batterie nemiche, videro avanzare una automobile su cui stava il Re accompagnato solo da un colonnello. Il Re scendeva, ordava alle trincee, per dare il saluto mattinale ai suoi soldati.

Egli, quindi, si fermava ad ogni sosta a discutere con lo Stato Maggiore di cose d'ordine militare.

In quell' occasione pernotò che alcuni corrispondenti pigliassero la sua fotografia. Egli voltò le spalle al primo, ma in perfetta salute.

In uno di quei villaggi, una ragazzina, per offrì dei fiori, fu da lui ripetutamente baciata sulle guance mentre i soldati presenti gridavano: Viva il Re!

La Grecia fa un Prestito

Il Ministro Venizelos, dopo aver conferito con i Ministri della Quatruplice, ha avuto un abboccamento con il Capo dello Stato Maggiore per prender cognizioni dello stato dell 'esercito. Pare che Egli voglia contrarre un prestito con l'assistenza degli Alleati.

ANCHE IL LAPLAND!

L'ULTIMATUM RESPINTO!

Roma, 21 agosto.—Pare ormai certo che l'Italia abbia mandato un ultimatum alla Turchia, il quale altro che la Porta respingerà' le domande dell' Italia e che quindi la guerra sara' inevitabile.

gli Italiani spazzano tutti gli Austriaci, qualche volta catturando delle considerevoli quantità di munizioni e approvvigionamenti, accumulati dagli Austriaci per invadere il territorio Italiano ai piedi delle regioni Dolomitee, piano questo completamente fallito.

ITALIANS OPEN NEW ATTACK ON GORIZIA

ROME, Aug. 21.—The battle on the Isonzo front for the possession of Gorizia has been renewed. Fighting is in progress from Tolmino to Sagrado. Italian engineers working under hot artillery fire from Austrian guns are constructing new pontoon bridges across the Isonzo near Gradisca.

Gorizia has been bombarded by Italian aeroplanes.

Incessant artillery duels are reported from the Carnic Alps, and from that section of the Trentino west of Lake Gardo, particularly in the mountains flanking the Chiese Valley.

Storms are prevailing over a great area of the front in the mountain regions.

ITALY'S KING IS CHEERED AS HE KISSES CHILD

ROME, Aug. 21.—King Victor Emmanuel has been visiting at many points of the new Italian front.

Ascending the Chiese Valley all the villages, which three months ago were Austrian, were decorated with the tri-color and their inhabitants gave the King a warm welcome. The King took up at one place a little girl who was offering him flowers and kissed her on both cheeks amid the cheering of the soldiers and the populace.

A party of reporters moved along the Chiese valley, where Garibaldi stepped in 1866 while marching toward Trent. While they were there the automobile in which was King Emmanuel, accompanied only by a colonel, appeared. The King was listening toward the trenches to hid his soldiers good morning.

The spot was three miles from the Austrian batteries, which shelled the region where the King quietly discussed matters with his staff and examined the Austrian positions.

Victor Emmanuel is thinner than at the beginning of the war, but he is sunburned and in perfect health. The King permitted some of the correspondents to take pictures of him.

Phone Girl Foils Raid of Yeggmen

PERRYSBURG, O., Aug. 21.—A gang of yeggmen was foiled in an attempt to raid this village today through the alertness of Miss Madelyn Yeager, telephone operator, who overheard a conversation between Toledo and Perrysburg police. Miss Yeager aroused scores of citizens who were waiting the arrival of the robbers who were in an automobile. The vigilantes opened fire. One of the thugs was probably fatally shot and four were captured.

WILLARD TELLS OF JOHNSON KNOCKOUT

By JESS WILLARD.

Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt. All Rights Reserved.

JOHNSON came up for the fifteenth with a rush. The minute of rest had freshened him wonderfully, and he tore in with both hands. Three times he got to my jaw with crashing rights and lefts, but they were high up. Not once did I give him a chance at the body.

As I went to the ropes I put short hand lefts to his stomach and he grunted like a stuck pig. The crowd was howling like a pack of wolves and a bunch near the ring was yelling for me to knock the nigger out.

The way Johnson kept his strength was amazing. Twice in the sixteenth he pulled off rallies that gave me all I could do, and just before the bell he put in a right swing to the body that hurt like blazes.

In the seventeenth I held to my defensive plan and let Johnson do the rushing. Every time I met him with my right cross to the body, and when I went to my corner I told Tom Jones that I was going to let loose a little.

I felt back as he forced the fighting and let him rush me into a corner. As he came in I met a straight left, smashing into his face and burying my left to the ribs. He staggered, and his eyes glazed.

I felt that nothing things right there, but I had made a promise to myself that I wouldn't try for a knockout until the twenty-first. My whole life was at stake, and recklessness was the one thing that could lose for me.

The nineteenth round found us in a clinch most of the time. When I went to my corner Tom Jones whispered, "How does he feel to you, Jess?"

"I could throw him out of the ring," I said.

As we came up I took the aggressive and put two lefts to his face.

"Good work, kid," he grinned. "Land again."

As I put my left to his jaw he made a furious charge that swept me clear across the ring. Once, body to body, I drove hard rights and lefts to the body and he caught his breath with a rumbling sort of gulp that was almost like a sob.

He looked like a different man as he came up for the twenty-first round. All of a sudden he had gotten twenty years older. His skin had gone a dirty gray and his mouth hung like a dog on a hot day.

He was fighting by instinct now. Everything had left him but the habit of clinching and blocking. When we came together his arms had the clutch of a drowning man.

From the twentieth round on, Johnson fought on the defensive and I never want to see cleverer fighting. He was watching his jaw and his solar now, for he knew that I had reached the point where I meant to try for the knock-out.

In the twenty-second he held on like grim death and I knew he had to pry us apart every time. In the twenty-third he never struck a single blow.

He knew that he was a beaten man, but before the twenty-second round he called for Mr. Frazee and asked him to have Jack Curley get Mrs. Johnson out of the place.

I hit a few blows in the twenty-fourth round and I was all primed for me to fight. I was sick of punishing Johnson and I waited around to see if I couldn't find an opening for the jaw. But Johnson kept his arms wrapped tight.

In the twenty-fifth I started in to make him drop his guard. A right hook to the heart made him gasp and I sent his head back with a volley of straight lefts. Three times more I put my right to his ribs and his lips curled back from his teeth every time they landed.

"Curley's taking Johnson's wife away," Tom Jones whispered to me in the minute of rest.

I shot a look back and there she was just getting up. She looked about as sick as Johnson did. Curley was trying to hurry her along but she kept stopping and looking, her fingers all locked and twisted.

The bell rang and I forgot all about her. They tell me that the knock-out came when I was passing by her corner. I'm sorry she didn't get out before the finish came.

As I got up for the twenty-sixth I knew it was going to be the last round. Johnson got up slowly, his whole body sagging as if he had a ton weight on his shoulders. I met him before he was fairly out of his chair.

My first blow was a straight left that sent his head back with a snap. His arms flew up and before he could get in position again, I let him have a right hook full in the pit of the stomach.

I never thought he would come again. His face twisted and his eyes welled up until only the whites showed. But I must have missed the solar, and the fighting instinct drove him forward into a blind, convulsive clinch.

I pushed and the referee pulled and we finally got him away. The crowd knew that it was the finish and all of a sudden the yelling stopped.

I saw some dogs corner a sick wolf once. He looked just as Johnson looked as he stood there waiting for me to put over the deep production. He had his hands up, but to his face there was that awful look of sick hopelessness.

I knew that a right to the heart would do the work, but I was afraid of that blow. When you fight a drinking man you take a chance when you hit him over the heart.

I walked right in and feinted with my right for the jaw. His guard went up and I whipped my left to his stomach. Down came his arms, and I hooked my right square to the point of the jaw.

He fell like a dropped chain. The referee's mouth flew open and I thought that he wasn't going to start counting. But he began in a second and tolled off the fatal ten.

I never heard the "ten." The roar of the crowd drowned everything else. The air began to rain people and almost before we could help poor old Johnson to his corner, the ring was a riot.

I was champion. Less than five years of fighting, but twenty-eight years of clean living.

(With Willard's statement of his plans tomorrow, he will end the series.)

JULIAN HAWTHORNE Writes of "EMERSON AS I KNEW HIM"

"He cared not whether or not you believed, understood, or agreed with anything he said; he was there to tell you the truth, and, compared with the truth, his audience was quite a negligible quantity. One evening, he had put on a very squeaky pair of boots, and they squeaked relentlessly all through the lecture. The audience was in torture and despair, but Emerson betrayed no sign of being aware of the calamity; the voice of the angel went side by side with the squeak of the boot, from exordium to peroration, and worried him not a jot," says the noted writer in telling his personal recollections of the great philosopher of Concord. And the page article he has prepared is replete with anecdotes and incidents such as few, if any other, could write.

THE GOVERNORS ARE COMING FROM ALL OVER THE UNION

And Boston is preparing a welcome such as has seldom been extended to a visiting host.

The big event of the convention, aside from the business session, will be the mobilization of ALL the State's militia. It is to be a BIG HOLIDAY!

You are sure to find the articles, which are appropriately illustrated, in the Sunday AMERICAN will tell you the complete details in an interesting and entertaining way.

THE AMERICAN'S TOURISTS, BACK FROM THE PACIFIC COAST, TELL OF MOST INTERESTING EXPERIENCES

Incidentally, they have a little fun at each other's expense. Romances are hinted at. A mysterious club which the men formed and another which the girls organized are discussed. Adventures in the Rocky Mountains, Reno, San Francisco, the Grand Canyon, Los Angeles and Mile-High Denver are related by the tourists themselves.

If you were in the contest, or if you helped build up the vote of any of the contestants, you'll want to read this story and see the pictures. Or if you intend to go to the Exposition, or if you'd like to, and want to experience a few thrills in advance, you will find this story enlightening.

ARE WOMEN TO RULE THE WORLD AGAIN AFTER THE WAR?

Doctors and other scientists foresee that the wholesale destruction of men will bring back the primitive, perhaps more moral and just, "Matriarchate." With everybody being put on record right now as to "Votes for Women," this article seems particularly readable.

BOSTON ROOKIES CRACK RIFLE SHOTS

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Boston "rookies" at the student camp held fair to capture more than their share of marksmen trophies. At the 600-yard range M. H. Gulesian of Boston, just fifty years old, established the Boston record of 43 points out of a possible 50.

Grant Brown, Harold Blanchard, Julian Cadman and C. S. Forbes are also in the front rank of candidates for the "sharpshooter" and "expert" medals. While one battalion burned powder on the 500 and 600-yard ranges, the other battalion went out on the road for their first hike under the forty-five pounds of service equipment.

Many of the Boston soldier students are expected to join the "holdover" session of the camp, which, it was announced today, would start September 8 and last till October 5. General Wood instructed Captain Johnson, in charge of enrollments, to notify the 400 applicants who could not be accommodated at the present camp of this second session of the war school. It is expected that the second camp will prove just as popular as the present.

COAST DEFENCE TALK.

The student soldiers were given a lecture on the deficiencies of the coast defence system of the country by Captain Charles Pfeiffer of the general staff, who declared that there was but one harbor fort in the country that would not depend entirely for safety on the entire United States army.

He told of the attempts being made to increase the range of the disappearing guns in harbor forts by changing carriages to permit greater elevation. The monitor batteries scattered here and there along the coast he pronounced as good as any in the world.

TO INCREASE RANGE.

"Under the present disappearing carriage arrangement, the maximum elevation of the pieces," he said, "is fifteen degrees. The 12-inch guns, for instance, as at present mounted, when elevated to fifteen degrees, have a maximum range of about 35,000 yards. If mounted so as to permit an elevation to a maximum of forty-five degrees these guns will have a projectile from 33,000 to 35,000 yards, which, in the case of the great 14-inch guns, the range will be increased from a similar maximum elevation to more than 37,000 yards. An elevation of forty-five degrees for the guns of 16-inch calibre will mean a possible range of about 44,000 yards.

"At these extreme ranges, however, the effectiveness of the guns would be doubtful, and the present intention is to alter the carriages so as to permit an elevation of twenty-six degrees, which, in the case of the 16-inch guns, will mean a range of more than 25,000 yards. This is one of the problems that the officers of the ordnance and coast artillery arms are studying, and the prospects of success are more than good. Furthermore, three of the ablest officers of the army, two of them of the general staff, and the third one of the famous engineers of the army, are working out the problem to a proper and efficient system of land support for the coast fortifications."

NEW YORK'S WEAK SPOT.

"There is just one place in our scheme of coast defence that would not need the entire mobile army of the United States to support it in the event of a crisis. That place is the Long Island approach to New York city, where the fortifications, which are three in number, Forts Michie, Terry and Wright, are on islands, and for that reason the strong support needed in the case of the other fortifications would not apply.

"Without adequate coast artillery protection on the east approach to New York through the Ambrose channel, an enemy fleet which would not necessarily have to be of great strength in our own, could lie off the mouth of Ambrose channel and make it a very difficult and dangerous undertaking for our own ships to get out of the harbor."

Harry C. Burnham has amassed his commutes at Company C. Between the first call in the morning at 5:45 and retreat in the evening he manages to take a shower bath, do his bunk, clean his rifle and be the first in line in the company street when the top sergeant's whistle blows.

NOT ALL WORK IN CAMP.

Philip Bloomer of the Shawmut Bank has determined not to trust a watch any more, and depends entirely on bugle calls to regulate his life in camp. Last night he turned in at 7:30 so as to be up at 4 to get an early start with the company for the range.

He awoke at 9:30 and asked the time. He was assured that it was 4:30 in the morning, so he got up and dressed. After comparing the time of his watch with that of others who were in on the joke and set their watches ahead, he threw it away in disgust. He waited some time for the whistle to blow, so before he discovered the joke. Now he waits for the bugle.

Morris Metcalf, formerly of Boston, but now of Chicago, is known as the Bean Drummer of Company A. His tailored dress blouse is the pride of the company and Metcalf is pointed out to all visitors on the street.

STATE PROTEST ON OUTSIDE FRANK AID

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 21.—Governor Nat E. Harris is going after the members of the mob who lynched Leo M. Frank, but in a statement issued here he requests, courteously but firmly, that the Northern and Eastern press and some parts of the outside public spare their efforts in bringing the offenders to justice.

Governor Harris says candidly that the outside agitation and inflammatory editorial abuse is beginning to complicate Georgia's task seriously. The Governor says:

"Editorials which have appeared in some of the newspapers in the larger of the cities of the Middle West and North, a great many of them the papers which have been the commutation of the sentence of Frank, are making it more difficult for the State to proceed.

"The people of Georgia who feel outraged and indignant at the hanging of Frank will put great pride and more indignant at some of the things being said in ignorance about Georgia.

"The people resent it. I think the whole State is anxious to see the guilty parties detected and punished as they want the matter handled by this State and not by every State.

"The first steps toward apprehending the lynchers are to be taken by the counties in which the offenses were committed—Baldwin and Cobb.

The Governor will call an extra session of the meeting of officials of those counties, possibly next week, and lay before them all the information he is now gathering. He will then instruct the judges of the respective circuits to order their Grand Juries to go into the matter, supplied with every resource at their command.

The solicitors of the circuit will be instructed to devote their most earnest efforts to the investigation.

Whether a special Grand Jury will be called for the investigation has not been determined. It can be handled by an extra session of the Grand Jury or by the one in session for the present terms of courts. The jury can call before it any number of witnesses in an effort to learn the names of the persons in the mob, or it can act upon an indictment of any persons who might be suspected of being members of the mob.

Nothing will be done, it is believed, until the coroner completes his inquiry into the matter, as some evidence of importance might be developed at the inquest.

Apparently the only tangible investigation of the lynching actually under way is that being conducted by Coroner Hooth of Cobb County, who empanelled a jury soon after he cut down Frank's body last Tuesday morning, but postponed the sitting for a week.

The coroner says he has discovered only two witnesses, who saw the lynching party in automobiles, approaching the vicinity of the giant oak near the Frey cotton gin.

One of these witnesses is William Frey, but neither was able to fix the identity of any member of the party. Frank was recognized, they say, because of his only partial disguise. The lynchers wore heavy automobile goggles, which effectively served the purpose of masks.

Under direction of the County Commissioners the coroner has employed Gordon Gann as special counsel for the inquest, which will be resumed next Thursday morning, in the Marietta courthouse.

Mr. Booth says the way the lynching of Frank was planned and carried out reminded him of the old Ku-Klux days of the South's reconstruction period. He said he was a member of the Ku Klux Klan in Fayette County, organised by General Nathan B. Forest.

Of the Frank investigation the coroner said: "I am sworn to inquire and inquire diligently and I am going to do it."

LEO FRANK'S BODY PLACED IN GRAVE AT BROOKLYN, N. Y.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The body of Leo M. Frank was buried in Mt. Carmel Cemetery, Brooklyn. The automobile hearse and the machine carrying relatives traveled at a high rate of speed over the six-mile route from the home of Frank's parents to the cemetery in an attempt to elude photographers.

Frank's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Frank, the widow and Frank's brother, Henry Frank, and brother-in-law, occupied the automobile that followed the hearse. A dozen other relatives and friends occupied three additional automobiles.

About forty curious persons were in the cemetery when Frank's body arrived, and they crowded close to the grave during the services. Perfect order was maintained at the Frank home and the cemetery.

Mrs. Lucille Frank, the widow, collapsed as she was leaving her mother-in-law's home and was assisted to her automobile.

BOSTON HERALD TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

Announcement is made by the Commonwealth Trust Company, trustee, that the Boston Herald will be sold at auction on the 14th of September to meet payment on semi-annual interest due on bonds secured by mortgage in 1912.

The Herald management declines to comment on either the default or the proposed sale. Charles A. O'Brien, editor of the Herald, refers all inquiries to Attorney Charles F. Choate.

The auction will include the sale of all property, equipment, good will, copyright, Associated Press franchises and the right to the name of both the Herald and Traveler. No bidder will be considered, however, unless he makes a deposit of $30,000 to be forfeited if he fails to make his bid good.

The terms of the sale provide that 10 per cent. of the purchase price must be paid on the spot and the balance upon receipt of the deed. Cash, or bonds secured by mortgage, will be accepted, according to the announcement.

The trustee reserves the right to continue the sale from time to time at his own discretion.

Red Cross Seeks Undesignated Funds in Massachusetts

"After the year's extensive work for the European belligerents, the Massachusetts Red Cross realises that the treasury needs replenishing in order to meet the emergency demands, not only for War Relief, but for the amelioration of suffering through disasters of any nature, in America as well as in Europe, for which the Red Cross stands at all times," declares Miss Louisa P. Loring, emergency secretary of the Massachusetts American Red Cross, in a statement issued today.

"Therefore, the undesignated funds in Massachusetts will now be collected for the American Red Cross to be expended in any way that is deemed most expedient, unless the donors state that their gifts shall go to the War Relief Department, which also continues as in the past year."

MOUNTAIN FALL KILLS BOSTON LAWYER

Mrs. Gilbert F. Ordway of Boston has left Mohr Camp, Washington, for home today, with the body of her husband, who was killed by falling over a precipice, while descending Mt. Rainier, according to advices received in this city.

Gilbert F. Ordway was a well known Boston lawyer and former Republican politician. He was junior partner of the law firm of Clark & Ordway, with offices at No. 54 Devonshire street. He lived at No. 42 Park Vale avenue, Jamaica Plain. His hobby was mountain climbing.

Accompanied by his wife, he left Boston on July 15 for the West to spend several weeks climbing favorite peaks in the Canadian and American Rockies. After three weeks in Canada, they went to Tacoma, where they were guests of George Swasey, a cousin of Mrs. Ordway.

Last week the couple made up a party of eight tourists to climb Mt. Rainier. On Thursday, under the direction of a guide, the party made the ascent. Mrs. Ordway had remained at Reeces.

Half-way between Gibraltar Rock and the summit Ordway's guide lost his footing and fell. He plunged over the heads of his companions into the precipice, a distance of only twenty-five feet.

His friends immediately went to the rescue and carried him to a camp a few miles away. There it was found he had received a fractured skull and never gained consciousness and died half an hour later. The body was taken to Reeces.

Mr. Ordway was forty-four years old and was born in Dorchester. He graduated from Harvard in 1893 and received his degree from the Boston University Law School in 1896. Except for a short time spent as a professor of law at Boston University he was in active practice.

6 Grandchildren Seek $300,000 from George Howe Estate

A hearing was given in the Supreme Judicial Court by Judge De Courcy on a petition made by the beneficiaries under the will of George Howe, who died in 1871, after part of the State Street Trust Co., trustees under the will, be authorized to distribute among the petitioners about $300,000 not required by the terms of the will.

Those who would benefit by the proposed distribution of the money are George Howe and Helen B. Howe of Mount Desert, Me., Elizabeth B. Colton of Milbury, Sydney H. Bradford of Springfield, Susanna B. Howe of Weston and Alice G. Howe of Manchester all grand-children of the testator.

The State Street Trust Co., has the possession of securities and cash valued at $858,034.74 over and above $157,000 on real estate located at No. 78 and 80 Devonshire street. The income of the securities amounts to about $17,300 per year and nearly $7,500 from the mortgages. The only payments now required from the trust fund are $4,000 a year to the two widows of sons of the testator.

Judge DeCourcy doubted the power of the Court to terminate the trust while the annuitants are alive, but on his suggestion the trustees will petition the Court for instructions, there being no objection on the part of anyone to the proposed action.

Woburn Arms Plant Guarded by Charged Wires Against Spies

The new arms plant of the New England Manufacturing Company in North Woburn, which is to turn out thousands of tons of munitions daily for the allies, is guarded against spies by a barbed wire fence, which is charged with electricity and patrolled by guards.

In each of the six storehouses about the plant is housed $30,000 worth of explosives. Each of these storehouses is about 1,800 feet from the main plant. A separate building is used for the storage of the powerful explosive trinitronal.

U. S. Reply Reaches Vienna.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—A dispatch to Reuters from Amsterdam says a message received there from Vienna states the American reply to the Austrian note concerning the transportation of arms and ammunition has just arrived at the Austrian foreign office.

REPRIEVE OF SIX MONTHS FOR B. & M.

By courtesy of the majority of the holders of the $17,886,000 notes in agreeing to extend the time till March 1, 1916, of the installment of reorganization or receivership of the Boston & Maine Railroad is again postponed for six months.

President J. H. Hustis of the Boston & Maine sent out last night, by a vote of the directors, a notice to the 600 holders of the $17,285,000 notes due September 2, a request for an extension to March 2, 1916, with an offer of interest discounted at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, and an alternate offer of exchanging 20 per cent. of holdings for Maine Railways 5 per cent. notes due April 1, 1915, at par flat, half of the latter convertible par for par into Maine Central stock until October 1, 1918, and the other half non-convertible.

NOTEHOLDERS WILLING.

Holders of a very sizable block of the notes have already indicated willingness to extend the notes a second time, and it is believed there will be less difficulty in securing an extension this time than there was last March. Noteholders have until August 27 to notify the Old Colony Trust Company which plan they prefer to follow.

President Hustis says that while it is still uncertain whether New Hampshire will pass the special legislation desired, "neither the Boston & Maine nor the leased lines should relax their efforts to secure such action. In any event we should still proceed to perfect some plan of reorganization which will take care of the company's debts."

DECREASING DEFICIT.

He points out that the road during the fiscal year ending June 30 was able to come within $234,000 of meeting its fixed charges, as against a deficit of $2,044,742 the previous year, and concludes:

"While this improvement does not remove the necessity of reorganization, it strengthens our belief that if a consolidation with the leased lines can be effected on equitable terms, a financially strong corporation will result, which will be to the greatest advantage of all."

He reminds the noteholders that their security will not be diminished by an extension, as no mortgage can be placed on the property without securing the notes, and an extension "will enable us to continue our efforts toward a sound reorganization, under favorable conditions."

New Branches to Aid Fund for the French Wounded Are Named

Prisoner Attempts Suicide in Jail at East Cambridge

With the end of a spoon that he had concealed and later sharpened to a fine edge Rudolph Hintze, twenty-three, awaiting trial at the East Cambridge Jail awaiting trial on a serious charge, tried to end his life in a cell in the jail yesterday morning in his left arm.

He had been lying on his bunk in the cell for some minutes before his stream attracted the attention of one of the night guards, and the cell door was opened. Hintze had lost a lot of blood and was in an almost dying condition.

The Massachusetts General Hospital was called on the telephone and an ambulance was rushed to the jail. Doctors at the hospital immediately dressed the wound and said there is no chance for his recovering.

To Cost Cambridge $1,000,000 to Enter State Water System

The Metropolitan Water Board has given an answer today to its notice that the "entrance fee" for Cambridge, if it joins the water system, will be $1,000,000, and a service rate of $75 the 1,000,000 gallons.

Cambridge has a water system established fifty years ago which has cost to date more than $6,000,000. More than 2,000,000,000 gallons are consumed yearly, more than 9,000,000 daily. The cost at present rates for 2,000,000 gallons, figured on total consumption, is $150.

A month or more ago a project was launched for a filtration plant to cost $2,000,000. This has been held up pending information as to the cost of entering the Metropolitan system.

Remnants of Big Tropical Storm Due Here Today

More rain for Boston is the prediction of the weather man today, who says what is left of the tropical storm that has devastated the South is due to hit here by tonight and linger through Sunday.

Early today the storm was central over Missouri and part of Illinois, where ten lives have already been lost and enormous damage done. St. Louis is partly under water, and 5,000 are homeless. All ordinary means of transportation have ceased.

The hotels and boarding houses were entirely unable to take them in and the Coliseum, First Regiment Armory and public buildings were opened for their accommodation.

Early today the First Regiment was called out to assist the police and firemen. Many daring rescues were made. So quick was the rise of waters that one woman was swept off her piazza with a little baby in her arms. She managed to grasp a tree and was later rescued by soldiers.

On the Illinois side, the river towns were in the same situation. Damage estimated at $500,000 was done in Belleville. Police and firemen rescued over 500 persons.

Near Alton, Ill., the levee has given away and floods are rushing through the streets. Every inhabitant of Benbow City and West Wood River fled to Alton for safety. At East Alton damage of $200,000 has already been done to two ammunition plants. It is feared some of the employes were lost when the buildings were engulfed by the flood.

O'Shaughnessy, 3b.; D. Drummy, s.s.; Al Porter, lf.; "Musical" Witham, c.f.; L. Greene, r.f.; Carl Wiley, 1b.; "Cupid" Riley, s., and F. Doiin, l.f.

DOUBLE BILL AT NEW BRAVES PARK

By RIGHT FIELD.

Another big day is on at Braves Field. It's Saturday bargain day, with the Pittsburgh Pirates—Honus Wagner and all—as the attraction. Maybe the turnstiles won't click.

Those citizens who couldn't by hook or by crook get out to Allston on opening day, much as they would liked to have, will all be there today for the two-game clash which starts at 1:30.

Other citizens who offended the base by unobtrusively sneaking out Commonwealth avenue way last Wednesday and getting called onto the carpet when their dereliction in business was discovered will be back today with nobody to say them nay, thanks to the eagerly awaited half-holiday.

These citizens have been sticking to the job Thursday and Friday, but this afternoon is their own. A call on the cashier and they'll all hit the trail for Braves Field.

Lefty George Tyler, who has been awaiting the call all year, will undoubtedly be sent after the first game. He could not do better than follow Long Tom Hughes' example—produced against the Cards, and blank the Pirate band.

In the second game we are more than likely to see Barnes, one of the new Braves hurlers, starting the game. He warmed up yesterday when Lonan opened up on Long Tom with a two-bagger.

Barnes is an able citizen and showed prowess when he was one of the trio sent in against the Phillies last Saturday. Nehf and Nock-Hit Davis form today's reserve squad.

Two double headers recently have kept the Pirate hurlers busy. Kantlehner appears a likely candidate in the opener. Meadows will probably go after the second encounter.

Harmon and Cooper, having each pitched twice of recent days, can probably be counted out.

The Braves looked mighty good yesterday and there is no reason to believe they won't look as good or better today.

The crowd will be out to keep the new field inspirators alive and a good afternoon's sport is assured, for the Pirates will fight all the way.

Irish Sports Will Feature Field Day

An elaborate program of Irish sports will feature the annual field day of the Galway Men's Benevolent Association, to be held Labor Day on the old National League grounds.

Hurling, football, tug-of-war, relay racing and a special two-mile race between the best professional athletes in this section will make up the card.

PHAIR VIEWS ON SPORTS

LET US HAVE PEACE.

His nose was like a sugar beet, his eyes were black and blue;
His lips were beaten up so much that words would not go through.

Said I: "A German hoodlum has put him in this fix."
The wounded nurse replied to me and calmly answered: "Nix!"

"He never shot a gun," she said, "upon the firing line.
Nor ever tried to fight his way from Paris to the Rhine.

"But one and day he got a fob, the poor, unlettered chump,
And in St. Louis tried to be a square and honest wop.

"A thousand battles hit him are the fate of the game,
Although he very yet over it, he'll never look the same."

As we understand it the sole difference between Frank Baker and Connie Mack is that Mack likes money, whereas, Baker likes money.

The report that some one offered $1,000,000 for the Reds leads one to suspect that there are loopholes in the Harrison law.

SAME OLD QAME.

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The fitney fun winds slowly o'er the lea.
I used to pay four bits to see them play,
And yet the game looks just the same to me."

Possibly there is nothing in a name, but Russ Ford pitches fitney baseball.

Various plots against umpires this season indicate that the umpiring is as bad as the playing.

Frank Baker is one of the most remarkable baseball players extant. He says he is willing to play if he can get enough money.

This country is busy making wooden arms and legs for the European war—so say nothing of the wooden heads it makes for the baseball war.

SOX OPEN SERIES WITH BROWNIES

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—The Red Sox reached St. Louis from Chicago this morning and it remains to be seen if they will be able to go through with their carded frolicking, or remain indoors at the Planters' Hotel.

It had been raining here almost continually since Monday night. The storm broke in all its fury yesterday, with the result that St. Louisans spent their most disagreeable day since today the big cyclone hit this city. There were some fatalities and St. Louisans are not very keen for baseball right now, especially as the Browns, the club giving the home show, have been doing their bad to worse of late weeks, and, even under normal conditions, meaning bright and sunny skies, sits, don't attract a whole lot of attention.

The Red Sox are to crowd four games into three days' play during their stay here. The Yankees, the outfit that preceded them to St. Louis, found three days without engaging in a single combat.

The show is carded for today, a twin bill tomorrow and the final set-to Monday. Of course, should there be nothing doing this afternoon, a double-header will go on for Monday, as this is the Red Sox's final trip of the season, and the last opportunity to get in any battling.

Joe Wood, always the biggest of enigmas to the Browns, is Hill Carrigan's pick for slab duty today. "Babe" Ruth will go to the hillock in the first contest tomorrow, and Vean Gregg, who used to stop the resilient artillery when he came along with the Cleveland club, will probably be used in the second battle.

As the Browns have not teed off in almost a week, all of Branch Rickey's hurlers are due today. They'll looks like Carl Weilman or young Koob.

Garry Herrmann Is Still After Marsans

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—The application of the Cincinnati club for a writ setting aside the Circuit Court decree modifying the injunction against Armando Marsans, the Cuban ball player, who was denied by Judge Dyer in the United States District Court. The Judge granted an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Cast Your Glims at Ring Eligibles

By RIGHT CROSS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—A lot of restless people are beginning to wonder if it is about time that Jess Willard was fighting somebody. Very well; who is Willard to fight, then? Cast your eagle glims along the ranks of his possible adversaries:

No. 1—Frank Moran, who got a decision over Willard when Willard was a remarkably poor fighter. The Gunner is now about all in. The other night he barely got a decision over Kemple, one of Willard's sparring partners. Willard used to toy with Kemple. He was training for Johnson.

No. 2—Frank Moran, who lasted plenty target for Willard's straight left. If Flynn could jar Coffey's jaw, Willard could shatter it.

No. 4—Al Reich, who was beaten by Jim Savage, a sparring partner of Willard. The Champion used to do as he pleased with Savage when he was training for the Johnson bout.

The others are not worth discussing. If Willard needs the money and had to have a match, there is not an opponent in sight who would give him a decent battle. It may not be that Willard is so exceptionally good, but the other heavyweights are exceptionally bad. This being the situation, there is no sense in packing at the big fellow for not fighting. How in the dickens can he fight when there is nobody to fight with?

"THE RABBIT'S" COLUMN By Walter J. Maranville HORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

"Rescue Tom" Hughes continues to pitch swell ball for us. It was a real treat watching the slim hurler baffle the Cardinals in the third and final game of their series. As we won by a count of 1 to 0, we are all happy. Hughes had to hold the opposition to four safe blows in order to win his game, as we were only able to smash out the same number of hits off Lee Meadows.

Sherwood Nottingham Magee—how's that for a big league name?—has proved to be one of the timeliest hitters on our team. The five-baser has always seemed to come across with a winning blow at the right moment. He paved the way to our victory over the Cardinals with a swell three-base hit to deep left field. "Bucket" Schmidt then singled and Magee scored the run which won the game for us.

There were a couple of wildeyed "fans" in the grandstand yesterday. One of them sat in Section J, while the other occupied a seat in Section K. They were both down front and kept up a line of talk which would make Jim Corbett look like a bashful. Jack in the game the loud-voiced citizen in Section K joined the band of megaphone voice in Section J and they kept up a merry line of chatter throughout the rest of the contest. Such persons amuse us players, although they often make life miserable for those unfortunate enough to occupy seats near them.

The Brooklyn club will take a great deal of beating before it will be put out of the race for the National League pennant. The Dodgers have been playing sensational ball during the past few months, and I believe that they will be in the fag battle to the finish. I did not rate Brooklyn very high early in the season. This opinion was held by practically every baseball expert and ball player in the country.

* * *

Conditions have changed during the past few months. The Dodgers have been playing sensational ball. They have the winning spirit which carries a ball club on to championship. It is the same spirit which enabled us to come from behind in 1914 and smash our way to the head of the National League. Every player on the Brooklyn club is traveling at top speed all the time. They are taking all kinds of chances to win games and the team which beats them out for the pennant will know that it has been in a real race. I believe that the Braves possess enough class to outdistance Brooklyn and the other flag contenders, but we will have to keep on the job every day until the championship has been won.

Good pitching has played an important part in the success of the Dodgers. Wilbert Robinson has always had a team of natural batters, while he has had plenty of clever fielders. Brooklyn's pitching, however, has been weak. Now that the Dodgers have plenty of high-class hurlers, they are driving their way through the league at a 75-mile-an-hour clip. It is a question, of course, whether Robinson's team will be able to maintain its present fast gait for the remainder of the season. A terrific strain of the closing weeks of the season may cause the outfit to collapse, in which case a more experienced team like the Braves will have a decided much difficulty in jumping into the lead.

Manager McGraw of the Giants has practically admitted that his team is out of the pennant race. The Little Napoleon has released Fred Snodgrass, while some time back he let Jack Murray go. It looks as though McGraw is going to try and build up a new machine which will be able to put up a stiff fight in 1916. The failure of the Giants to play good ball this season has been a big surprise. The team left the post in April well fortified in every position and Bous Stallings, Johnny Evers and many other men well posted on baseball affairs, believed that we would have to beat out the Giants to win the pennant.

The Giants had one of the finest infields in the game at the start of the season. With Merkle at first, Doyle at second, Fletcher at short and Lobert at third McGraw had an infield which compared favorably with any in the game. These four men are all good fielders and daring base runners, while, not one of them is considered a weak batter. Doyle and Merkle have been hitting well all the season, but they have been unable to win games for New York.

The Giants' outfield has been stronger than the average one in our league. Robinson, Snodgrass and Burns made up a good trio of fielders. Since Snodgrass was released, Merkle has been shifted from first base to centrefield, while Kelly, a recruit, has been covering the initial bag.

* * *

The New York pitchers, of course, have not shown to very good advantage this season, but a team with sluggers like Doyle, Merkle, Lobert and Meyers should not need airtight burling in order to win its games.

Alec's Number Held by Carey of Pirates

Max Carey of the Pirates, at present out of the fray as a result of injuries received in a collision with Hans Lobert in a recent Giant clash, is the only player who has hit safely in every game in which he has faced Alexander this season.

Up to June recently Evers, Fitzpatrick, Herzog and Wade Killifer could claim that distinction. But they have all failed since then to dingles against the Phil. marvel.

NEWS WRITTEN BY LEADING EXPERTS

GALLANT READY FOR BIG GO AT ATLAS

ALEX McLEAN, manager of Gilbert Gallant, is not greatly worried because Dan Retrick declares that Frankie Callahan will stop Gilbert Gallant in their bout which is scheduled to be decided at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night.

"I realize that Callahan is a sweet puncher," said McLean today. "Any twenty-year-old boy who can knock out Joe Rivers and score knockdowns over Joe Mandot, Sam Robideau and Jimmy Duffy must be able to punch hard. But I am still confident that Gallant will win next week's whirl.

"The wise men claimed that I acted foolishly when I signed Gallant for his first contest with Leach Cross, but 'Gill' came through an easy winner. They also thought Sam Robideau would beat Gallant at the Atlas Club this year, but my protege again finished in front.

"If Callahan is such a hard puncher as they say he is the fans should witness plenty of action at the Arena next Tuesday night, as Gallant is quite a star himself when it comes to scoring with a winning blow."

JIMMY CLABBY, the Hammond middleweight who has "cannon" Manager Lamney Lichtenstein, declares that a mantor is an expensive luxury. Clabby has signed to battle Les Darcy in Australia and is booked to sail for the land of the Southern Cross on August 21. In telling why he quit Lichtenstein, Clabby said:

"I'm through with managers. Hereafter I will handle my own affairs. I can't afford to pay out one-third of all the dough I make—and that's the percentage I've been giving to Larney.

"It is my contention that the successful fighter of today does not need the services of a manager at any such price as 33 1-3 per cent. of the gross receipts. In fact, I don't believe managers are necessary at all. I consider myself able to make all my matches, post all my own forfeits, and protect myself in every way without expensive advice from somebody else.

"I HAVE made about $80,000 in the fight game. A big chunk of my earnings has gone to 'managers' who did the talking while I did the work.

"On my Australian trip I will take Artie McQueen, my trainer, and that's all. I will be working under contract with Snowy Baker and will be amply protected. So I don't need a manager on that trip.

"When I return I think I will be able to look after my own affairs. I'm through with managers, and that's all there is to it."

CLABBY is one of the many boxers who have "fired" their managers after they gained success. There are a few crimp men who possess enough ability to handle their own business affairs, but the majority of ex-pugs in today's world still be floundering in the ranks of the preliminary boxers if it were not for the guidance which they received from a clever business man acquainted with the boxing game.

IF Clabby fights Les Darcy in Australia he will have to be at his best to win. Les Darcy is a high-class performer, as he recently proved by knocking out Eddie McGoorty, the Oshkosh middleweight.

TONIGHT'S RACE CARD.

30-Mile motor-paced race.—George Wiley, Syracuse, N. Y., vs. Victor Linart, Antwerp, Belgium, vs. Bobby Walthour, Atlanta, Ga., vs. Elmer Collins, Lynn, vs. "Pinkie" Turville, Revere.

Special 3½-mile novice race, Amateur and professional events.

George Wiley, Victor Linart, Elmer Collins, Bobby Walthour and "Pinkie" Turville meet in a 30-mile motor-paced contest at the Revere Cycle Track tonight in the first five-cornered match of the season.

Wiley has been cutting out such a fast clip that practically everything is coming his way. He has won every one of his last five races at the beach, two of which were fifty-mile affairs, while two others were one-hour events.

Wiley's wins have come so fast that he has Linart on the anxious seat. Linart has twice attempted to break it up without success. Last Wednesday night the Belgian was going well until he received a bad toss, which put him out of it. The foreigner is bent on getting Wiley this evening and naturally some great riding should result.

It will be interesting to watch Young Turville against the big fellows. The Revere boy is improving with each race and in another year should be able to take his place in the front row.

There will be a special one-half mile novice race on tonight's card, together with the regular card of amateur and professional events.

FIVE-CORNERED BIKE RACE AT BEACH OVAL

Several Girlies Enter the Orient Heights Swim

The score or more of young swimmers of the Orient Heights section who will attempt to hit it up from the Orient Heights Yacht Club to Governors Island tomorrow, have put the finishing touches on their training and anxiously await the crack of the pistol starting them on their two and one-half mile race.

Several young ladies will attempt the swim. They will be headed by the Misses Alice O'Neil and Agnes Logarty. Both girls are well known for their swimming ability in the South Side Island section.

Among the carded starters are Thomas Giblin, Jr., Talbot Courtney, Everett Smith, Robert Mackey, John Coughlin, Oliver Wise, Theodore McGrath and Thomas O'Connor.

Yost Will Have Six Helpers Coming Fall

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 21.—Coach Yost of the Michigan football team will have the largest squad of assistants which the Wolverine management has ever furnished him. Six assistant coaches have been engaged. Allmendinger, the final acquisition, has been signed.

Allmendinger was a Michigan star and All-Western guard two years ago. He coached the South Dakota School of Mines last season. He will help coach the line.

Prentis Douglas, another Wolverine graduate, will have charge of the freshmen. "Jimmie" Raynsford, captain of last year's Wolverine eleven, is the other new coach besides Allmendinger.

Planning Memorial to A. G. Vanderbilt

Friends and admirers of the late Alfred G. Vanderbilt as a horseman are going to erect a monument to him here which will commemorate his many services to horse, interests in general and to the National Horse Show Association in particular.

Officers of that organization have taken the lead in the matter, and subscriptions amounting to more than $500 already in the hands of the secretary.

Mr. Vanderbilt was president of the association, and it has been said he was on his way to England in its interest when he went down on the Lusitania, so it is peculiarly fitting that his associates should start the movement for a memorial.

"White Rabbit Nation if Fighting Dies Out"

"Take away the admiration for strength and let the fighting instinct die and you'll have a race of white rabbits.

"Put boxing teachers in all the schools and you'll have less fighting among the boys."

Jess Willard's autobiography, which has been running in the daily AMERICAN for the past two months, comes to an end on Monday. In the last chapter the world's champion tells why he is proud of his title and what good can be accomplished by leading a clean life.

In short, he sums up the whole story.

New Baseball Rule Caused McLean's Fall

The rule of the National League that suspended players could not be carried on the disabled list caused the giants to give an outright release to Larry McLean, who had been carried as suspended since his fight in St. Louis with McGraw and Kinsella. At last accounts Larry was playing with Mike Donlin's "all stars" around the New York semi-pro parks.

JOE JACKSON IS WHITE SOX GRAB

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Followers of the White Sox are heads themselves with joy following the purchase of Joe Jackson from the Cleveland Indians by Magnate Comiskey. It is understood that the Old Roman gave $25,000 in cash and three players, including Eddie Murphy, recently annexed from the Athletics, in exchange for the slugging outfielder.

Comiskey confirms the sale, but states he won't be able to give out the exact terms until Secretary Grabner returns from Cleveland. Grabner had instructions to go the limit; in fact, he was ordered to acquire Jackson at any price, as Comiskey believes that with one more hitter on the South Side team Chicago, and not Boston or Detroit, will nominate the American League entry in the World's Series.

Jackson is the fourth American League star Comiskey has bought for Rowland in his attempt to win the pennant. Eddie Collins and Eddie Murphy of the Athletics, and "Little Nemo" of the Indians are the players landing in Chicago uniforms ahead of Jackson.

Jackson's report for duty at once and Rowland confidently expects to have him in his lineup today, or tomorrow at the latest.

Windy City Banker Wins Title Shoot

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—L. B. Clarke, a Chicago banker, won the Grand American handicap shoot. Clarke ran out his 20 shots from the 15-yard line without a miss. Four men were in the final shoot. M. E. Dewire of Hamilton, Ind., was second, J. J. Randall of Greenburg, Wash., third, and C. C. Hickman, Peoria, fourth.

In the division of the money Clarke won $731.50; Dewire, $703.50; J. J. Randall, $626.05, and C. C. Hickman, $546.90. H. Hammersmith of Milwaukee won the consolidation handicap with a score of 91. The starters in this event numbered 271.

In the professional division R. O. Heikes of Ingram, Ca., won first trophy, scoring 96 breaks.

J. L. Snow of Boston shot at only 80 targets, breaking 64 out of that number.

Frankie Fleming to Meet Abe Attell

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Abe Attell, the former featherweight champion, will try to do it over again on Labor Day, when he stacks up against Frankie Fleming, the Canadian champion, in a ten-round session at Hoboken, N. J. The little champion is immensely pleased over the prospect of referee's decisions being given in New York, and says if he is ever lucky enough to get Kilbane in the ring with him, he will have little trouble outpointing him and earning the verdict.

Just an Earful

THROW IN DAT BUCKET!

WHEN Terry McGovern was quite young and hitting opponents rather than the high places his ability was questioned by a colored gentleman from the Gowanus Canal section.

The dark sports, listening to the talk of the cullud wonder, bet everything they hal, from "iron men" down to razors. They were betting that Terry wouldn't put him away, and all bets were covered.

The fight came off. Terry whaled the ebony-hued mitt pusher within an inch of his life in the first round, and in the second was preparing to slam him for keeps, when the latter took a dive near his own corner. He was playing dead for fair, and seeing no sponge come to his rescue, whispered, "Throw up dat sponge! His chief second barked back, "We ain't got no sponge. Get up."

Up came our hero for more. Terry dumped a left to the pantry and down he went again.

"Throw up dat towel!" he yelled, looking mournfully at his seconds and backers.

"We ain't got no towe. Get up," came back through the noise from that corner.

The colore dwonder looks dback again in a puzzled manner and then, feeling his bum glim, yelled, "Well, t'row in DAT BUCKET, DEN."

2 French Boxers Killed in Action

The latest casualty list contains the names of two more prominent French boxers who have been killed in action. Eugene Trickel, the popular feather weight, fell while brilliantly charging at the head of his section in the Argonne. Trickel had just bayoneted a German when a shell exploded nearby and blew him to pieces. Toulis, the well known flyweight, has died of wounds in a German hospital. Gaston Pigot, the heavyweight who beat Dan McGoldrick in Paris, was badly wounded by shrapnel but is progressing favorably in a hospital at Cette.

Clabby to Battle Australian Star for World's Title

Following the information that the bantamweight championship title would soon be at stake in a match between Coulon and Williams comes the announcement from Chicago that Jimmy Clabby, considered by some the premier American middleweight battler over the "derby route," and Les Darcy, the Australian who recently stopped Eddie McGoorty, have been matched, that meeting for the world's championship to take place in Australia next November.

Clabby dispatches state, will depart for the antipodes next month to finish training for the bout.

Clabby has been campaigning in this country for several months, taking on anybody in short tights. At this sort of mill he has not done so well and has been lucky to get by with some of the exhibitions he has put up.

68-Year-Old Pitcher Proves a Real Star

CANONSBURG, Pa., Aug. 14.—When W. C. Sedillion, sixty-eight years old, became disgusted with the work of the pitcher of the McConnells Mills baseball team in its game with the Westland nine he threw off his coat, stepped into the box and pitched his team to victory. The score was 8 to 5 in favor of McConnells Mills.

Sedillion pitched three innings, struck out four men, gave one base on balls, hit one batsman, but did not allow a hit. He scored one run. It was the first game he had played in 25 years.

PENNANT RACES BECOME TIGHTER

The race for the pennants in the National, American and Federal Leagues is becoming tighter daily. But two points separate the first and second clubs in each league. In the National League the race is "free for all." Only 79 points separate the leading Phillies from the tail enders—St. Louis and Cincinnati.

Three clubs are fighting it out in the American. Boston leads, with the Detroit coming strong, while the Advent of Joe Jackson in the ranks of the White Sox is expected to aid that club in climbing higher.

The Chicagos are now five games behind the leaders.

Twenty-eight points separate the five leading clubs in the Federal, Newark, Kansas City, Pittsburgh, Chicago and St. Louis, the latter being three games behind the leading Newarks.

It is not likely that the pennant will be decided in any of the leagues until the last week of the season, as no club has shown enough spurting power to secure a commanding lead.

Plodding Pirates Dangerous Team

Those Piratical persons from Pittsburgh will bear watching. They aren't playing the class of baseball that would have won a pennant in years gone by. But this is 1915 when it seems highly probable that a .500 per cent ball club will grab the National League muslin.

The Pirates started slowly—and poorly—this year. It was mid-June before they began playing the brand of ball of which they are capable. Since then they have been moving forward, slowly, of course, but they are pushing the leaders in the main object. And it begins to look as if the pledging Pirates will be the ultimate victor in the National League.

Young Ahearn to Become Soldier

NEW YORK, Aug. 14. — Young Ahearn, one of the most promising middle-weight boxers in the game, is going to fight. Tired of trying to do battle here, Ahearn announced today he is going over to Europe, where there is some real fighting, and enlist in the British army.

Ahearn is an Englishman by birth, although he has spent most of his life in America. He has been strongly urged to enlist by British sporting men because of the effect his lead would have on other young Englishmen.

Through an Accident Browns Secured Koob

Ernest Koob, the Western Normal College pitcher, picked up by the St. Louis Browns, was landed by accident.

Bruno Rickey, Brown manager, went to Ann Arbor, Mich., to look at George Sisler, the Michigan University star, before signing him. He saw Sisler pitch a losing 3 to 2 game against Western Normal with Koob in the box.

Koob allowed only two hits that day, both of which were made by Sisler. Rickey immediately grabbed Koob, and he has made good.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

BY RIGHT FIELD

BUSINESS MANAGER SEEKAMP of the Cards took one walloping big check out of town when his team hit the trail for New York. The Cards' share of the Dedication Day receipts would start a national bank in some towns. Of course, there was also a tidy sum representing the second and third games.

THE Braves will play the Colonials, a nine of college boys, in New York, Sunday, September 5, on their way out onto the road.

SECRETARY HERMAN NICKERSON of the Braves is taking a short vacation, after the last road trip and the opening day excitement.

BESCHER, who had a prodigious day at the bat in the second game, had to be content with a single in the final clash. He hit a large assortment of fouls the first time up, and one came near being good. At last he was passed. He skied and whiffed the other two times.

"LONG TOM" got "Hug" twice on strikes. That's why "Hug" benched himself later.

HOW do you like riding but in the "bungalow" trailers?

BARNES, one of the new Braves pitchers, who worked a while in Philadelphia last Saturday, warmed up for a few minutes after Dolan's first double.

A Titian-haired rooter had an awful time. Just as he got ready to roll a cigarette he had to call on the Rabbit to "hit 'em out," advise Hughes to "keep 'em low," or something. Mackly Arbuckle can roll a cigarette with one hand, but no "fan" can roll one the while he is raising both hands to the dizzy clouds.

CAPTAIN JOHN got his derby appliance.

THE Boston & Albany employes, we observe, put in a requisition with the road's department of supplies for a ladder. It makes sitting on the roof of that shanty a bit easier.

MORNING, Hanse! How're they biting?

FIRST bargain day on Braves Field.

ONLY thirty-one Cards faced Hughes.

THERE'S always a scramble at Braves Field when the "last car" cry goes up for unattached starters. They hold the car while all the substantial citizens do the hundred-yard dash for it. After that the "fans" have to seek Commonwealth avenue for a car.

CAPTAIN JOHN does not expect to see the exact setting of the Allston jubilee duplicated. He pointed out that never again, perhaps, will we see 48,000 persons pulling for one team to win during the progress of a game. With 48,000 at a World's Series encounter, naturally the "fans" would be in rival camps. Such a record crowd, all "rooting" for the Braves, tickled John to death.

NOW what the "fans" are worrying about is how many persons could get a game on Braves Field if ropes were stretched about the garden.

Vermont 'Fans' Boom Robinson for World Series Trip

J. C. ROBINSON.

Watch for the new vote standing in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN. It will surprise you.

The candidates have done a great deal of hustling since the last standing was printed.

Now that you have a new vote list, you know just where you stand again. If you have dropped down in the list don't be discouraged, but get out and line up your friends and ask for their support for just three weeks more. Tell them you can win if they help you.

If you have jumped up towards the lead, don't feel overconfident. The race is nearing the finish now and every day will show changes in the list. If you are among the leaders now, hold on tight by adding to your vote total each day.

The big ten-vote coupon appears tomorrow—get out among your friends NOW, TODAY, before you see the vote standing—and get as many of the big coupons as you possibly can. If you are well up in the list, they will help you, even if your votes are not in the lead yet, they will help you get there. Vermont "fans" have chosen Charles J. Robinson of Newport as their representative at the World's Series games. He says: "My friends are determined that I shall represent Vermont at the big games and I'M NOT GOING TO DISAPPOINT THEM."

PACKEY-GIBBONS BOUT IS PUZZLE

There is considerable speculation as to just what kind of an affair this Packey McFarland-Mike Gibbons bout is going to be.

There are a few of the gentle readers of pugilistic notes who are confident that it's going to be soothing of a grudge fight, and, therefore, a hammer-and-tongs affair from beginning to end.

Packey's sore on Mike, and Mike is just awfully peeved at Packey," say this faction. "They've been at swords' points for years, and both have been keen to settle the argument. This is the first—and probably the last—chance for each, and fur's going to fly."

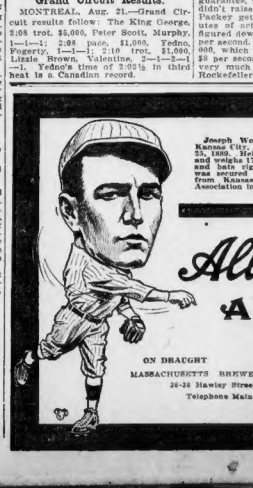
But, on the other hand, there's the big bulk of fight fans who think the affair will be not a mere bout, but a dancing contest. Boxing means work. Why should Packey and Mike work when they will get paid whether they work or not? That's the way some folks argue.

Packey hasn't done any active ring work for nearly two years. That's a long time to be out of the fight game. Packey may come back faster and stronger than ever—and he may not. He may put up a whirlwind exhibition, and he may decide to take things easy and simply use his master defensive stock like the leads of the "St. Paul Ghost."

Mike is in shape, and when Mike wants to get in shape he's a wonder. But Mike, in the opinion of some of the experts, isn't as good as he was a year ago. He shows slight signs of slipping—of bowing to the inevitable will of Age.

Nevertheless the bout ought to be a humdinger if both men really extend themselves. But will they?

Some of our best citizens, after reading about Mike and Packey's guarantee, wonder why their parents didn't raise 'em to be prize fighters. Packey gets $17,500 for thirty minutes of actual boxing, which, when figured down, shows he will get $9.72 per second. Mike's guarantee is $15,000, which nets him something over $8 per second. Those incomes listen very much like that which John D. Rockefeller's press agent tells about.



Joseph Wood was born in Kansas City, Missouri, October 25, 1889. Height 5 ft. 10½ in. and weighs 175 lbs. Batted left and bats right handed. He was secured by the Red Sox from Kansas City American Association in 1908.

Summer-Loves

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service.

THEY last just as long as the carefully scratched words they draw in the sand! Ardent man and maid, sure with Kipling's enthusiast, that "Love like theirs can never die," write the title of Love's Litany on the sand, the old sweet words, "I love you!" And Love, old Dan, you know, crouches along side and believes, too (what faith he has!), that the sea will never come up and wash this out. But the sea laughs low, blue and lacey and lipping nearer and nearer. The tides reach and fall, and when a Summer day is gone the sand where "I love you" was written deep is as smooth as a million other sands where the slipping sea washes in and out. There isn't a mark to tell. Summer loves! They don't always smooth away without leaving a mark on somebody's heart.

"She," mourned a man I know, "she was as sorry to go as I. I swear she had tears in her brown eyes—big brown eyes. And I watched the tail-end of her train pull out and draw and vanish away until even the smoke of it was a dream, and I never felt so lost-doggy in my life. The sun had gone out.

"She wrote once!"

In Our Wonderful World

THE missing link in the evolution of the horse has, it is stated, been discovered in the miocene strata of the Southern Sierra Nevadas and has been reported to the Pacific Coast Division of the Paleontological Society of America. The fossil form, discovered by J. B. Buwalds, of the University of California, is that of a three-toed horse of the merychippus type, long sought by scientists to fill the gap in the history of the horse. It is said the fossil fits precisely the description of a hypothetical animal which scientists maintain must have existed in horse history.

At the meeting of the British Association in Australia Professors Edgeworth, David and Wilson described a completely mineralized human skull found near Warwick in the Darling Downs of Queensland. It probably dates from a period when the great fossil marsupials were still living and is earlier than any other human remains hitherto found in Australia.

Old Troubles for New

Another "Right-O" Story, in Which a Novel Scheme Is Propounded

By DOROTHY DIX

"I'VE got a get-rich-quick scheme," said the Stenographer, "that's going to put Mr. Schwab into the piker class, and make Bethlehem Steel look like a busted boom."

"Let me in on the ground floor," replied the Bookkeeper, "but what's your little graft?"

"I'm going to start a Trouble Exchange," declared the Stenographer, "a place where you can take the particular grouch that afflicts you and that gets on your nerves and sours you against the world, and trade it off for some nice little worry that you wouldn't mind bearing a particle."

"It's a great idea," said the Bookkeeper. "I wish I had some people's troubles instead of my own."

"That's just it," asserted the Stenographer. "What ails us is that each one of us has got the particular kind of trouble that gets him or her on the raw. That's why it hurts so.

"Now, yesterday I met a rich old woman who was a bundle of bones and nerves and dyspepsia wrapped up in silk and lace and diamonds. And she told me how foolish I was to worry over being poor and shabby, and how happy she would be in a thirty-nine cent shirtwaist if only she could tuck away a good feed under it.

"And all the time she was talking I was doping out what a time I would be having if I had money to burn, as she had, and nothing to worry me but a few nerves and a little unpleasantness in my rathekeller."

THE OTHER VIEWPOINT

"We're all heroic when it comes to bearing other people's misfortunes," observed the Bookkeeper.

"That's just it" said the Stenographer. "We never look at one another thinking what a noble example of patience and Christian fortitude under affliction we could give if we had nothing to bear but the measly little troubles that they are making such a howl over.

"Of course, we're putting up the same sort of a scream about our own particular assortment of aggravations, but that's because our troubles are the very sort of troubles that trouble us most.

"Now, why shouldn't people be able to trade off the sorrow they can't bear for the one that they wouldn't mind bearing? Suppose you could swap off your hatrack-jammer headache, for example, for a nice attack of the gout that it would be an actual pleasure to nurse."

"It would be all to the good," sighed the Bookkeeper.

"Sure" replied the Stenographer, "and just take our most common trouble, matrimony, for instance. Half of the women in the world are perfectly miserable because they are married, and the other half are utterly wretched because they are not.

"Wouldn't it be perfectly lovely if the woman who is shedding great gobs of tears over her husband who is playing poker half the night with the boys could exchange her sorrow over her husband for the heart hunger of the old maid who is worrying because she hasn't got anybody to worry over?

"Then there is the blighted genius female, with a good husband, and home, and children who is afflicted with acute melancholia because she has missed the career.

"Isn't it a pity she can't trade off her yearning for fame for the longings for a home of the lonely woman who might wear a laurel wreath instead of a bonnet if she wanted to, but who would swap off a trunk full of press notices for a husband who really loved her, and who would rather hear a little child calling her mother than to get the glad hand from a clique led by the head usher!"

FATE OF THE JILTED

"I read in the papers the other day," said the Bookkeeper, "about a young man who had barrels of money, good health, and good prospects, but who killed himself because some jammy little girl jilted him."

"Yes," replied the Stenographer, "and yet when I called the attention of a man who was walking the floor because he had backed the wrong side of the stock marked to that story he said that the young man was a fool, and the only thing that justified a man in hiking out over the suicide route was the loss of money.

"All might have been well if only one man could have exchanged his broken heart for the other one's busted bank account."

"I don't believe people would exchange their troubles if they could," said the Bookkeeper, reflexively.

"Maybe not," agreed the Stenographer, "but if they wouldn't, they ought to quit complaining about them."

Found—A Lost Paradise

The South American Indian's Dream of Original Bliss

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE legend of an original Paradise on this earth, from which man got himself excluded by his own greediness, turns up in a new and extremely charming form in the stories collected by Dr. W. C. Farabee, of the University of Pennsylvania, among the Wai-Wai Indians, whom he found dwelling in the Tumao-Humac range of mountains, on the border between Brazil and the Guianas, and as remote from civilization that they knew nothing of white men.

Dr. Farabee believes that these Indians are the descendants of the Caribs and Arowaks whom the Spaniards encountered along the coast four hundred years ago. They are exceedingly simple in their ways and tastes, and physically very handsome representatives of the human species, almost good enough, in that regard, according to Dr. Farabee's description, to inhabit a new Garden of Eden.

They have no jewelry . . . d no metals, and wear no more clothes than necessary. But they do make cloaks, aprons, henddresses, etc., of home-woven cloth, intertwined with the bright-colored feathers of gorgeous macaw birds, which excite the admiration of the civilized visitor by their novelty and beauty. The women are described as resembling statues of polished bronze, of magnificent proportions, while the men are well made and intelligent looking.

If, as Dr. Farabee thinks, these Wai-Wai Indians, with the surrounding tribes, who resemble them in manners and appearance, represent a union of the remains of the ancient Caribs and Arowaks, then the peaceable character of the latter, who, before the coming of the Spaniards, had been sadly harassed by the warlike Caribs, has prevailed in the blending. There are no wars among them now. They live on vegetables, fruit and game, grind cassava with roughly hewed granite boulders and obtain fire with sparks from stricken stones.

Spring is their mating time, as with birds, and then they put on their brilliant garments, gleaming with the most exquisite hues of scarlet, yellow and blue, and dance the "hasheka," or "peanut vine dance." An imitation of this dance was long ago produced in Brazil, being picked up from the Indian tribes and carried down the Amazon, and this was the origin of the "Maxixe," a dance which came to America through Paris. In the place where it was invented this dance is a rite of the mating season, as symbolical as the bacchic dances of the ancient Greeks.

Those great mystery stories of universal humanity, the legends of a Paradise and a Deluge, have been found again by Dr. Farabee in this almost inaccessible part of the world. The Paradise story, as told by the Wai-Wais, is in some respects more pleasing than the Hebrew account used by Milton in his "Paradise Lost." In the beginning, it says, the god Duwid, having made men and women, continued to feed them with his own hands, bringing them every day abundance of fruit and vegetables.

In their idleness, the men and women found nothing more interesting to do than to watch the other animals. Thus they discovered that these animals went off somewhere every morning and returned at night. Led by curiosity, they followed, and found a great tree which shed every day from its branches both fruits and vegetables, on which the animals fed.

"Here," they said, "is where Duwid gets our food. Henceforth let us come and help ourselves. Then we shall not have to thank him for it."

Accordingly, they told Duwid that he need not take the trouble to bring them food any longer, for they had found out where to get it for themselves.

"Very well," said the god, "but hereafter you will have to work for it. Tomorrow the tree shall be cut down, but to save you from stagnation, I will give you a hint. Break off branches bearing each kind of fruit and plant them in the ground. Water and tend them carefully and they will flourish and continue to bear abundantly as long as you continue to labor."

They began to obey Duwid's instructions, but, becoming wearied, left off before they had taken from the tree more than a small number of the infinite variety of fruits that it bore. Fortunately, they got the cassava, but they have to work hard, not only to raise it, but to fit it for eating. The enormous stump of the great tree, they say, still exists, in the midst of their country, in the form of a huge, steep-sided rock, rising high above the roof of the forest.

The Wai-Wais are described as a very childlike race, but this legend of theirs is full of adult wisdom and a keen knowledge of human nature. It depicts the consequences of idleness and too indulgent paternalism far more pointedly than the story in Genesis does, while altogether avoiding the unnecessary invention of the serpent as a tempter. The absence of vindictiveness in the god Duwid's sentence is also a notable feature.

Why We Quarreled

No. 4—Money Is Burden of This Wife's Tale

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

THE matter over which my husband and I quarrel oftenest is money.

I have always supposed that this was the matter over which most couples quarrel.

I have no money of my own, yet if I had, it might not make any difference. I have a friend who has her own income, and she and her husband squabble about it. He does not like her to spend it without consulting him, and he considers her extravagant. It is not that he would touch a dollar of her money, for he wouldn't. Nor is there any need of his doing so, as he is a very rich man. But he wants to be consulted about all her expenditures.

In my own case, I have no need to talk about how to spend my money—for that is a negligible quantity. George hates to hear me say this, but it is true. I am a dependent. He is a generous husband, and is willing to open accounts at the various shops where I want to buy things, and when the bills come in he pays them by check.

Doesn't that sound nice? Well, in reality, it is dreadful! When the first of the month comes and I see a sheaf of bills laid with my husband's mail, I shudder. I watch him anxiously as his eyes run down the column of items and figures—for I am the one who has ordered all the articles named.

To be sure, some of them were for the house—table linen, curtains and so forth. Once in a while it has been necessary to replenish my stock of fine napkins, or get a company tablecloth. There are also occasions upon which I have had to make some gift—wedding present, or something of that kind—which has gone from both of us. I always explain all these matters. It is bad enough when George asks me if all those things were really necessary. Yet as he is represented in some of them, and uses some of the others himself in his home, I can often reply calmly to this question. But when the items are clothing for myself, it is a different matter.

THE EVENING WRAP

Last Winter I had a new wrap made at home. I wanted to buy it ready-made, but evening wraps are very expensive. I consulted my husband about the matter and he agreed that, going out as often as I do to little dinners and other evening affairs, I ought to have a nice cloak to wear over my light gowns.

"If you can have it made at home, get the materials from one of the shops where we have a charge account," he suggested.

I did not stand for some nice fur to trim the wrap with, but I stifled this longing. Instead, I got just enough swandown to go around the neck and sleeves. For lining, I got seven yards of brocade, at a "special price." It would not look well to have a satin coat lined with cheap material.

Yet, when the bill came home and John blanced over it, I saw him draw his brows together.

"Can this be right, dear?" he asked. "Seven yards of silk at two-fifty per yard? I thought your coat was to be of satin. In fact, I see I am charged with satin, too."

"The other is brocade for lining, dear," I faltered. "Really that wasn't much to pay for it."

"Lining!" he exclaimed. "Good gracious! If you spend that much for lining, you'd better wear your coat inside out!"

"I did not suppose you were going to have your wrap lined with cloth of gold," said my husband

"You told me to get a handsome wrap," I reminded him. "And I thought you meant me to do so."

"Certainly I meant it," he returned. "But I did not suppose you were going to have it lined with cloth-of-gold."

"I am saving a good deal on it by having it made at home," I ventured. "The garment from which it's copied cost seventy-five dollars just as it is in the shop."

"A millionaire's wife can afford to wear that kind of thing," he said brusquely. "My wife cannot afford it."

Yet, later, when he admired my pretty coat and I reminded him of what he had said, he was hurt to think that I "cherished a grudge" against him.

AS TO CHARITIES

"You know I am always glad to have you buy nice clothes," he insisted. "I was not displeased at your getting that wrap—only surprised to find that the materials cost so much. We men are ignorant of women's expenses, you see."

Yet he is not willing to let me have money with which to meet my own expenses.

Even in my charities it is the same way. I am one of the managers of a girls' home. I like to give to this organization, yet to do this I would have to ask my husband for the money for my gift. He thinks me foolish to be so much interested in working girls. So when I want to make a present to the Home, I buy table linen or bed linen, have it sent home and charged. Then I take these few articles over to the Home as my contribution.

I suppose this would seem dishonest—wouldn't it—to most people. But as my husband tells me that I earn my living and my luxuries, too, may I not indulge myself in this luxury? I am housekeeper, wife and mother—thus I do earn all I spend. He could not hire a woman to do what I do for what it costs to keep me.

Last month I tried to be brave and ask him for money for a gift. I wanted to send a poor cousin a bit of jewelry on her birthday. I asked George timidly for $10.

"What for?" he demanded.

I told him, although I know he dislikes this cousin.

"Have it charged and send the bill to me," he ordered. "It's all the same."

It isn't all the same, but I can never make him understand this. So I did not buy the bit of jewelry.

Floored

At last the harassed father of a family settled down to read his paper.

Only Alphonso, the oldest, aged nine, remained with him in the room. And Alphonso was a nice, quiet, studious sort of lad. He had but one drawback—he would ask questions.

"Father," he began.

"Yes, Alphonso?"

"Had Adam only one name?"

Father glared at his innocent son. Then, controlling his temper, replied:

"Of course, he had. Don't ask any more silly questions."

A short silence. Then:

"Father," said Alphonso again, "may I ask just one?"

The man threw his paper on the floor in a tantrum.

"Father," went on the lad, "was Adam his first name or his last?"

BOSTON AND MAINE RAILROAD

Boston, Mass., August 19, 1915.

To the Noteholders of the Boston & Maine Railroad:

The holders of Notes due September 2, 1915, are asked to extend these notes to March 2, 1916, on the following terms:

(1) ANY HOLDER OF NOTES MAY EXTEND THE AMOUNT DUE THEREON UNTIL MARCH 2, 1916, WITH INTEREST DISCOUNTED AT THE RATE OF 6% PER ANNUM, OR

(2) ANY HOLDER OF NOTES MAY EXTEND 80% OF THE AMOUNT DUE THEREON ON THE TERMS STATED ABOVE AND MAY RECEIVE IN EXCHANGE FOR THE REMAINING 20%, FIVE PER CENT. GOLD NOTES OF THE MAINE RAILWAYS COMPANIES DUE APRIL 1, 1919, AT PAR FLAT, WITH OCTOBER 1, 1915, COUPON ATTACHED, OF WHICH ONE-HALF WILL BE NOTES CONVERTIBLE AT THE OPTION OF THE HOLDER, PAR FOR PAR, INTO MAINE CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY CAPITAL STOCK UNTIL OCTOBER 1, 1918, AND THE REMAINING ONE-HALF WILL BE NON-CONVERTIBLE. NOTEHOLDERS WILL BE PERMITTED TO INCREASE OR DECREASE THE PERCENTAGES OF "EXTENDED NOTES" AND OF MAINE RAILWAYS COMPANIES NOTES SO AS TO OBTAIN EVEN MULTIPLES OF ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, by strict economy, and with the partial benefit of increased passenger and freight rates recently granted, the road was able, notwithstanding a decrease in operating revenue of $1,489,236, to come within about $334,000 of meeting its fixed charges, as against a deficit of $2,044,742 for the previous year. While this improvement does not remove the necessity of reorganization, it strengthens our belief that if a consolidation with the Leased Lines can be effected on equitable terms, a financially strong corporation will result which will be to the greatest advantage of all.

If granted, the extension of your notes now asked for will not in any way diminish your security, as no mortgage can be placed upon the property without securing your notes, and it will enable the management to continue its efforts toward a sound reorganization, under favorable conditions.

Should holders of Boston & Maine Notes who accept Plan No. 2 desire notes of Maine Railways Companies in excess of their allotment of 20% they may be permitted to increase their holdings of Maine Railways Companies Notes and decrease their Boston & Maine Notes, accordingly, from any of such notes remaining in the Treasury. In case of applications in excess of the amount of notes available, allotment will be made as far as practicable upon a pro-rata basis.

Acceptances of the above offers are to be construed as conditional upon action by the Directors, not later than September 1, 1915, declaring the plan of extension effective.

NOTEHOLDERS ARE REQUESTED TO INFORM THE OLD COLONY TRUST COMPANY, 17 COURT STREET, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS, BEFORE 2 P. M., FRIDAY, AUGUST 27, 1915, WHICH OF THE ABOVE ALTERNATIVE OFFERS THEY RESPECTIVELY DESIRE TO ACCEPT, AND TO STATE IN THEIR LETTERS GIVING THIS INFORMATION, THE NUMBERS, DENOMINATIONS AND DATES OF MATURITY OF THE NOTES HELD BY THEM. NOTEHOLDERS WILL SUBSEQUENTLY BE ASKED TO PRESENT THEIR NOTES FOR EXTENSION OR EXCHANGE.

By order Board of Directors,

J. H. HUSTIS,
President.

NEGRO BUSINESS MEN START ON HARBOR TRIP

Delegates to the National Negro Business League convention are today guests of Mayor Curley and the city of Boston. The day's program includes a trip down the harbor in the Monitor and a visit to several of the State institutions. It is also announced that Mayor Curley has made a contribution toward defraying the expenses of the convention.

The trip down the harbor as guests of the city, follows the refusal of the league to endorse resolutions thanking the Mayor for courtesies extended during the week. The resolutions were offered by the committee on resolutions of the league. They included motions thanking the Mayors of Cambridge and Boston.

Robert F. Coursey, of No. 8 Concord square, moved that the resolutions be so amended that the league should go on record as refusing to extend its thanks to the Mayor of Boston. President Booker T. Washington put the revised resolutions to the convention and they were carried.

COURSEY A NEW MEMBER.

Coursey has been a member of the league but one day. Both he and his son were arrested last Winter at the time of the riots attending the presentation of a moving picture film objected to by negroes.

After the passage of the resolutions many officers and members expressed great regret at the action.

S. G. Willis of Fredericksburg, Va., gave an address on pickle manufacturing. He modestly announced that at times he was known in his part of the country as the "pickle king."

G. D. Rogers of Bradentown, Fla., said in his paper on, "How I have Combined Merchant Tailoring with Farming and Real Estate," that he was doing one of the most remarkable long distance tailoring businesses in this country. He said he had done much tailoring for Boston men who visited Florida in Winter and his work had given such satisfaction that he had many repeated orders.

CAMBRIDGE MAN SPEAKS.

Contractor George B. Blacknall of Cambridge said bankers had told him negroes in Greater Boston owned $17,000,000 worth of real estate. This was disputed by Robert Coursey, who said he had been employed to make an investigation some years ago, and he had tabulated $2,000,000 worth from the Boston assessors' books.

The business of taking photographs had been a remunerative one for Daniel Freeman of Washington, D. C. It appears from his recital that he had prospered to such an extent that he now pays taxes on $30,000 worth of real estate and owns two automobiles. Freeman said he had taken the pictures of as many as fifty babies in one week, and he had to assure each mother that hers was the prettiest child he had posed that week.

FATHER OF 18 CHILDREN.

Fred Moore of New York said he believed he could claim the honor of being the father of more children than any man present. He said he was the father of eighteen. His son, he said, did a tea and coffee business in that part of Harlem, which has 50,000 negroes in it, and that his son kept two tons of coffee on hand all the time.

Two things were impressed on the audience by Mrs. P. H. Owens of Philadelphia; she has taught 361 young negro women to be experts in the beauty parlor business, and she said she had come from Philadelphia to Boston in her own car.

The same officers have been elected for the ensuing year.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS
By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks ruled lower at the opening, but the average decline was not large. Some issues were unchanged and a few showed gains. War order issues were weak and the most active. The Arabic episode was still the greatest bear influence, but there is universal desire to know the facts about the sinking of the steamship, and to learn what action the United States will take. No immediate answer to either question is expected.

There is a renewal of the uncertainty which attended the destruction of the Lusitania, but the stock market is showing more inherent strength. This country is in a stronger financial position than it was then, and big crops are practically assured. Many traders believe that no matter what may happen that standard securities are below their proper value now. As regards most war order stocks, they are not likely to lose in their appealing force to the gambling instinct.

There was no improvement in the tone of the New York market within the first half-hour and the war orders showed the greatest losses. Trading was not of great volume and operators were in a waiting mood. Reports from Washington were carefully read, but afforded little of the kind of information desired.

Among losses at the end of fifteen minutes were Allis-Chalmers ⅝, American Can ⅝, Car & Foundry 1, Baldwin 1, Crucible Steel ½, Goodrich ¼, Mexican Petroleum ½, New York Air Brake ½, Westinghouse 1, Studebaker 1, U. S. Steel ⅝, Anaconda ¾, Chino ¼, Utah ¾, Inspiration ½, American Smelting ⅞, Baltimore & Ohio ⅝, Northern Pacific ⅝, Reading ½, Southern Pacific ¼, St. Paul ⅛ and Union Pacific ½.

Among gains were Atchison ¼, Rock Island 1¼, Tennessee Copper 1⅜, Distillers' Securities ⅛ and American Locomotive ¼.

The Boston market was irregular at the opening and weakened later. Among early declines were Alaska Gold ½, Copper Range ½, Lake ½, Atlantic Gulf preferred ¾, American Zinc ⅜, and Butte & Superior ⅜. Gains included Woolen preferred ½, Greene-Cananea ⅛, United Fruit ½ and Shoe Machinery ⅜.

Most of the business, and there was very little, was in coppers and zincs. Nothing new regarding metal market conditions was reported. Copper producers expect a big buying movement and are stubborn about making price concession. Zinc ore is selling still lower at Joplin.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

"She Can Sit Up All Night, Smoke Cigarettes and Play Wonderful Tennis"

PERHAPS, but the Lady Is Using Up the Accumulated Physical Wealth of Ancestors Who Went to Bed Early

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

A WONDERFUL young woman from a foreign land is playing tennis in this country. She is the champion, a real giantess of strength, a marvel of nervous precision.

She is "all over" the tennis court. Eyes, feet, hands, nerves, all work together.

Another woman player, describing this marvellous foreign player, said of her: "The wonderful thing is that she does not need to take care of herself as the rest of us must do. She can sit up all night long, smoke cigarettes, eat and drink everything she wants, and the next morning she plays tennis and beats us all. She is a marvel. Nothing affects her."

There are such marvels, and they do harm. For while they live foolishly—smoking cigarettes is the most foolish thing almost that a woman can do—and eat foolishly and sleep insufficiently, they show great power. And the young and the foolish say: "Oh, there is nothing in this careful living. Look at that person, stronger than I am, and see how that person lives."

But, young people, remember that this foreign lady from the north is not spending merely HER STRENGTH when she sits up at night and exerts herself violently the next day. She is spending the accumulated strength of ancestors that went to bed at 8 o'clock in the evening or earlier and slept all night long.

She comes from a country where the sun sets the good example and goes to bed very early indeed for a great part of the year. In her nerves, in her heart and in her brain she has stored away hundreds of years of long sleep and hundreds of years of wise living.

It is not SHE who is so strong, but her ancestors who were wise and powerful.

When you see a foolish young person spending in one night ten thousand dollars that it took his father a year to earn you do not say, "What a wonderful, powerful young person." You say, "What an awful fool; how soon he will get rid of the money that his father earned for him in a lifetime of work."

When you see a young woman wasting the night hours and performing wonders in the day hours you simply see an interesting little spendthrift quickly scattering the accumulated power of hundreds and thousands of years of good living and wonderful ancestry.

Save your strength and your nervous force as you would save your money. An empty pocketbook in old age is not as bad as an empty nervous system.

And do not emulate the young spendthrift who scatters the money that his father accumulated, or the other spendthrift that scatters the energy accumulated by ten thousand ancestors.

War's Partial Reparation to Suffering Humanity

FROM the field hospitals of France and Germany comes news of many valuable discoveries in antiseptics and the treatment of the wounded. The best medical brains of Europe are behind the firing lines, and with the vast opportunity for observation better methods of treating wounded men are being rapidly developed.

The army surgeon is not moved solely by motives of humanity. His job is to fix a man up so that he can go back to the front. But it is a big and an important job, and in attending to it the surgeon keeps himself at the top of his bent.

As a consequence, means of caring for the sick are devised under high pressure that might never be thought of in times of peace, for the man of medicine has a double incentive behind his thought and skill.

It is little enough reparation for war to make to humanity, this knowledge of healing, but it is some reparation at least.

In after years, when the world is at peace, those whose suffering is alleviated quickly, those who survive dreadful injuries that today would prove surely fatal, can remember that for these blessings at least they have to thank the hideous monster—War.

Once-Overs

The majority of us care too little for what our families think of us and too much for the way we appear to the outside world.

To make a show, comforts—even necessities—are denied in the home too often that lavish display may be shown to outsiders.

Family quarrels are oft the result of the expensive entertaining of those who may, perhaps, laugh at you and your efforts as soon as they leave your home.

Denying the family ordinary expenses for a month that a number of people outside may be given the most expensive things possible is a poor plan to follow.

What do you gain by it?

Giving people costly and elaborately prepared viands cannot buy friends. The worth while friend is the one whom you can treat as you treat your family. If he be the right sort, he will enjoy the privilege of dropping in at mealtime with the members of the household. No extra furbelows. Just a plate and it is done.

Don't try to gain friends and social position at the expense of home comforts. It is not worth while.

THIS IS LIFE

Frances Starr Tells How a Girl May Succeed as an Actress

By Frances Starr

Finances

DURING my first year as an actress my earnings averaged about seven dollars and a half a week. There were times, of course, when I made as much as fifteen dollars a week, other times when I made but ten dollars, and many weeks when I was not playing at all.

This brought the average to the amount I stated at the beginning of this chapter. Incidentally, I not only lived upon my seven dollars and a half, but I also supplied and made my own clothes for the parts I had to play upon the stage.

I write this so that the girl who hopes to become an actress may understand that her financial possibilities at the beginning of her career, anyway, are not in the direction of untold wealth.

As a matter of fact the amount of money a woman may earn upon the stage is vastly overrated. One hears large sums mentioned as the salaries earned by prominent actresses in various engagements, but what the average person does not seem to understand is that this income is not steady.

Indeed an actress may think herself well off if she has engagements that pay her during six months out of every year. Thus it is most desirable that the salary actually earned by an actress when she is at work should be one-half saved, because she has to support herself in the months she is not working, and she will be idle nearly half the time.

To play as many parts as possible, covering as varied a number of characters as she can cope with, means, particularly in the early days of a girl's career, the secure building of her future. Money in the life of an actress is not a dependable asset at best. Between the uncertainty of success in a play and long and enforced vacations for this reason or that her finances must ever be a gamble. Her sure and only happiness must lie in her work. Wherefore my advice to the girl who hopes to become an actress is to study and work always, with no thought of the financial gains.

When I try to tell the girl how to study in the career which she has chosen again I feel I cannot generalize. Perhaps there is nothing in which human beings differ more than in their methods of work. Actresses are not exceptions to this rule. I dare say no two actresses undertake the study of a new part in exactly the same way.

First I feel I must have the "atmosphere" of the entire drama—feel it and understand it—and then I must understand in every particular the character which I am to interpret.

It is the "letter perfect" method, I think, in studying, which is apt to develop a mechanical and sing-song school of acting, although eventually one's lines must be read accurately. For it is perfectly true that the other actors and actresses in your company must depend upon you as they do upon each other for their cues. And the author's idea must be expressed in his, not the actor's words.

Perhaps it would be not uninteresting to the young girl who hopes to become an actress to learn, for example, how I studied the part of "Marie-Odile."

Before I had read the play "Marie-Odile" I only had known convent life as the average person knows it, principally through books. But when I realized the part I was to interpret I at once made my arrangements to spend four or five months in a convent. I went to live among sisters of one of the more strict religious orders. I closed out the world entirely.

If one takes the words of a part in studying it merely as "words," one works from outward manifestations only, ignoring the motives in which are concealed always the true drama.

More Truth Than Poetry

Coming to a Decision

I LOVE the big imposing cars that swiftly roll along
And hum, like giant bees, the while a whirring, purring song.
Like Titan chariots they seem, down here on earth today;
Tomorrow, smashing speed laws on the glittering, milky way.
I'd like to own a car like that and loll in haughty pride
Upon the shining leather seats and ride and ride and ride.

BUT
I hold that ostentation
Is a base abomination,
And, besides, the men who own 'em get unutterably fat;
While the lively little Flivver
Is far better for the liver
And it's modester and cheaper,
so I guess I'll fall for that.

I LOVE those long and low hung cars that flash before your eyes
And vanish ere you've had half time to swallow your surprise.
I'd like to shoot about in one, in parabolic hops,
And leer in grim derision at the helpless, hopeless cops.
I'd like to whirl across a State in wild cyclonic style,
Imbibing as I sped along along a thrill with every mile.

BUT
Though thrills are fascinating,
They are highly enervating.
And as I am not abnormal in my appetite for fun,
I can get a first-class shiver
In a little jogging Flivver—
So I think, upon reflection,
that I'd better buy me one.

SOMETHING ELSE AGAIN
On the stage she could picture emotion
That gave the most callous a throb,
But no man ever fell for the same lady's spell
Who had seen her eat corn off the cob.

Nothing Doing

The President, we are told, wants Big Bill Edwards nominated for Sheriff of New York County. But until Mr. Lansing has got what the President wants from the Kaiser and King George he will have little opportunity to enter into negotiations with Charley Murphy.

Which Will You Bet On

One storm is predicted for Haiti by the Weather Department and another by the Navy Department. Which indicates that something is going to happen in Haiti.

Apotheosis of the American Boy

Cannibals worship a god with eight stomachs who eats continuously. Most parents worship the same kind of a being.

Necessarily Contraband

The Missouri mule is the ideal munition of war, being not only highly explosive but exceedingly edible.

"Good Morning, Governor!"

Practice This Salutation, Today and Tomorrow, for Next Week the Town Will Be Chockablock Full of Governors and Ex-Governors, Next Governors, and—as Like as Not—Even a Future President or Two.

Boston—and New England—will next week enjoy the honor of entertaining the Governors of no less than thirty States of the Union. Not to mention "ex"-Governors.

The chief executives are already on their way to Boston to attend the Governors' Conference.

What IS the Governors' Conference? What are its functions?

"The functions of the Governors' Conference shall be," according to the Articles of Organization adopted in 1912 at Richmond, Virginia, "to meet yearly for an exchange of views and experiences on subjects of general importance to the people of the several States, the promotion of greater uniformity in State legislation and the attainment of greater efficiency in State administration."

The Governors were first called together in the Spring of 1908, when President Roosevelt invited them to the White House "to consider the question of the conservation and use of the great fundamental sources of wealth of this nation."

Since that time the first citizens of their respective States have assembled at Washington a second time and in Kentucky, New Jersey, Virginia, Colorado and Wisconsin in the order named. This will be their first meeting in New England.

The Governors' Conference has thus become a national institution. When the Conference met at Frankfort, Kentucky, in 1910, Woodrow Wilson, then Governor of New Jersey, discussed its possibilities. Said the Governor who has since become President:

> The States of this Union expect their Governors to exercise leadership, leadership of the most careful and frankest sort, and therefore it is of the utmost consequence to the country that men who attempt to exercise leadership should come together in common council to consider the affairs that the whole country is concerned in, but that you individually have to deal with. It is of very much importance to draw the country together in thought; it is of very much importance to draw the country together in a united purpose, in a common motive, which constitutes patriotic action.

One of the affairs the whole country is today concerned about is national preparedness against war. Citizens, therefore, will observe with gratification that the big question before the Governors' Conference next week, in the Senate Chamber at the State House, will be "The Relation of the State to the National Defence."

In line with this discussion of THE question of the hour, Governor Walsh and the members of the Executive Council have wisely planned to "turn out the guard" in honor of the visitors.

On Thursday afternoon, for the first time in eight years, the entire Massachusetts Volunteer Militia will be mobilized in Boston. Intended primarily for the edification of the Governors, this parade of 7,000 militiamen, dressed for service rather than show, should be of unbounded interest to all citizens. The Massachusetts militia is today second to no other in the country. Its appearance for public inspection, indeed, should send some of the Governors back to their States filled with the determination to have the home State go and do likewise. Incidentally, we of Massachusetts may learn to have a new and greater respect for the self-sacrificing guardsman and may feel encouraged to insist that legislators, and others, shall do their full duty to the State and its citizen soldiers.

For four days, next week, Boston will enjoy a glorious opportunity to prove that she has been maligned before the Nation.

Boston, thanks to the envious, the scoffer and the jokesmith, is in certain parts of the Union believed to be cold, reserved, stiff, unbending. The Governors' Conference furnishes a most excellent opportunity to lay this slander low. Now is the time for all good mixers to come to the aid of their Boston. Shake hands! Thaw out! Say something! Loosen up! Come on in!

And please—please—please do not assume that all the States beyond New England are new and raw. Former Governor Gilchrist will be with us from Florida. If you talk Plymouth and the Pilgrims to Gilchrist, Albert may reasonably remind you that St. Augustine was founded fifty-five years before the Pilgrims saw the Rock. Governor Henry C. Stuart, and former Governor William Hodges Mann, will be along from Virginia, suh, to call attention at the right moment, and under due provocation, to the fact that Jamestown, in the Old Dominion, is the site of the first permanent ENGLISH settlement in what is now the United States.

This leads us to ask the young people—the boys and girls—if they can tell us the name of the first child of English parents born in the New World. A prize is waiting in this office for the first boy or girl, under fifteen, who sends to the Editor of the Sunday AMERICAN the correct answer to this question.

The Sunday AMERICAN, by the way, will devote at least two pages to an illustrated story of the Governors' Conference and "United States Preparedness Week" in Boston.

Everything you want to know about the Governors' Conference, the great military spectacle of Thursday, the Governors' inspection of the North Atlantic fleet, and all the other activities of Governors' Week, will be told authoritatively in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

Nor is this all.

The happiest comic section, the merriest fun, the best pictures, the most interesting magazine section, will be found, as usual, in New England's greatest Sunday newspaper, the Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

In addition to all the news of the world down to the very moment of starting the giant presses.
